Martial Law Proclaimed By Turkish Government In All Parts of Nation

Action Taken in View of General Political Situation following Return of German Ambassador Believed Carrying Virtual Ultimatum that Turkey Join Axis-Planned "New European Order"

ANKARA, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Turkish government proclaimed martial law tonight in virtually all sections of European Turkey, including Istanbul, "in view of the general political situation."

This step was taken shortly after Germany's ambassador, Franz von Papen, returned from Germany, presumably carrying a virtual ultimatum that Turkey join in the Axis-planned "new European order."

Effective for a Month
Sections of Asiatic Turkey, bordering on the vital Dardanelles, also were included in the martial law proclamation.

A terse announcement said: "The prime ministry and council of ministers, as a result of its deliberation Nov. 8, have deemed it necessary to proclaim martial law from the day of this announcement for one month in the districts of Istanbul, Kizilirmak, Edirne (Adrianople), Tekirdag, Channakkale and Kocaeli."

Corps General Ali Riza Arzuoglu, commander of gendarmes, is appointed to take charge in these districts. This step is taken under authority granted in Section 86 of the Turkish constitution.

The proclamation followed a three-hour meeting of the council of ministers which also was reported to have approved a bill to strictly ration gasoline that it prohibits use of private automobiles or power boats.

Physicians Exempt
Physicians, embassies and legations were exempted from the gas rationing. Food rationing possibilities also were reported under consideration.

There were unofficial reports that the government already was studying the problem of possible removal of civilians from Istanbul, Turkey's largest cities and the most vulnerable to air attacks.

Observers believed Von Papen might have brought a near-ultimatum proposal that pro-British Turkey pledge herself to stand aside if Bulgarian and German troops move to attack Greece in aid of Italy.

Newspaper men at Istanbul put the question to the German—"normal relations" between Germany and Turkey continue?

His answer: "I have no declaration of any kind to make."

The Istanbul press declared anew that Turkey didn't want to fight but would if it seemed necessary.

Absentee Ballot from Alaska Breaks Tie

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Nov. 22 (AP)—An absentee ballot, cast by W. T. Martin, barber, at Kodiak, Alaska, arrived today and broke a 1,651-vote tie to give a Jefferson county commission to Arthur C. Boren, Democrat, over Robert Cook, Republican.

Green Doubts Election of Murray As CIO Head Will Heal Labor Rift

Says He Hopes New President Will Work Toward Closing Gap

By JAMES MARLOW
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22 (AP)—Prospect of labor peace through Philip Murray's election to the CIO presidency today was greeted coolly by AFL chieftains, whose own union leaders prepared for a challenge to their authority.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, which is in convention here, said he "hoped" Murray's selection would work toward closing the gap between the AFL and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Wants Co-operation
On the subject of how he thought Murray could cooperate in the peace efforts, Green said:

"He could appoint a committee. There was such a committee

Convention Adjourns after Condemning Pending Legislation To Deport Harry Bridges

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 22 (AP)—The CIO wound up its third annual convention today by adopting a resolution calling upon the department of justice to "institute a searching investigation of employment by Ford Motor Company of known Nazi agents."

Another resolution termed special legislation to deport Harry Bridges, West coast CIO leader, "an attack upon Bridges and upon organized labor."

The resolutions were passed after pleas for internal unity in the organization were made by Philip Murray, who was installed as the new president, and John L. Lewis, who stepped down from the CIO helm.

Term Bill Unconstitutional
The Bridges resolution said a bill now before congress which would order the West coast leader's deportation was "unconstitutional."

The convention requested that the government inquiry into "the relationships between officers of the Ford Motor Company and the German industrial combines."

The same resolution asked that the National Defense Commission, the War and Navy departments "exercise every effort to bring complete and immediate compliance by the company with the Wagner act and other labor laws of the nation."

The labor board has handed down several decisions against the Ford company in cases brought by CIO's United Auto Workers Union.

Another resolution introduced by R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, promised Ford Motor Company employees that the organizing drive already under way "would be the paramount object."

In its closing minutes the convention heard a moving farewell speech from John L. Lewis, retiring president. Speaking in the third person, Lewis declared that even those who had disagreed with his policies would have to accept the conclusion that "whether he—meantee but Lewis (John L. Lewis, CIO president) was on the committee. That committee and our committee met several times but last year Lewis announced there would be no further meetings."

"All I can say is that we hope for the best," said Green, whose previous assertion that Murray's succession to Lewis would mean nothing so long as Lewis remained president of the CIO's powerful United Mine Workers was re-echoed by AFL Secretary-Treasurer George Meany.

Meany said after Murray had been chosen: "Well, that's still Lewis."

The challenge to the union leaders—almost quiescent until a three-round fist fight and unashamed charges of promise breaking exploded in the convention—put them in this position, Meany said:

"If they vote the AFL authority to go into the unions to

BRITISH GIRLS TRAIN TO AID IN AERIAL DEFENSE

British girls are taking a more and more active part in the war. Here are some of them being trained in aerial defense work, learning to operate a Kinetheodolite, an instrument which traces anti-aircraft shells as they are fired and photographs their burst in relation to the target, permitting gunners to make the necessary corrections in aim.

Pershing Declines Appointment as Envoy to France

Commander of AEF in World War Rejects Post on Doctor's Advice

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—General John J. Pershing has declined an appointment as ambassador to France on the advice of physicians.

President Roosevelt announced at Hyde Park today, and it was reported here that another choice already had been made for a successor to Ambassador William C. Bullitt.

The president's announcement that he had offered the Vichy post to General Pershing, an old World war friend of the French chief of state, Marshal Philippe Petain, indicated that he had decided to accept Bullitt's resignation.

Bullitt submitted his resignation on November 7, but said later the president had declined it. When he left the White House last Friday, Bullitt said he still was ambassador to France.

The name of Bullitt's successor, which was believed to have been

Dispute over One Worker Is Cause Of General Strike

Hope Fades for Early Settlement at New Kensington Plant

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 22 (AP)—A mass meeting of CIO members voted unanimously tonight to continue a strike which today closed down the huge New Kensington works of the Aluminum Company of America, until the discharge of a worker involved in a dispute over payment of $12 in back dues.

The vote was taken in the jammed, smoke-filled auditorium of the high school after two hours of discussion behind locked doors.

The strike, which threw 7,500 workers idle, also interrupted work on vast national defense orders, including those for airplanes and army field kitchens.

Statement Is Issued
A spokesman for the Aluminum workers union issued the following statement:

"Members of the union heard the report of its representatives who conducted negotiations for five hours this morning with the company.

"They reported the company refused to meet the union demand, which is they discharged the individual around whom the controversy is centered.

Congressional Battle Is Seen on Relaxing Law To Give More Aid to Britain

Some Senators Want To Permit American Ships To Carry Cargoes Into War Zone

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—A renewed congressional battle over assistance to England is shaping up for the coming session of Congress with proposals that American ships be free to carry cargoes into the war zone and that the Johnson act be repealed apparently destined to become the principal issues.

Several senators reported today that in the aftermath of the election—in which both parties urged all possible material help to Great Britain—they were receiving quantities of mail urging action to promote the program.

Senator Austin (R-Vt.), the assistant Republican leader and an influential member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said today that while he had always been for helping England he was "more so now than ever."

"There has developed a growing knowledge of the relationship of a British victory to our peace and the country is becoming less isolationist and more realistic," he said.

He was reluctant to take a position on specific proposals and preferred, too, to await developments abroad. If events between now and early 1941 make it appear that national defense may best "be promoted by a marked increase in supplies of all kinds to Great Britain which require that some of the embargoes that interfere with transportation be raised," Congress could, he said, take up the question in the light of such circumstances.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) also a partment heads to $434,004 over the amount now received from the state.

Approved Proposed Budget
Turner said $179,668 of the $434,004 proposed increase "pertains to agriculture." The State Horticultural Society's Executive Committee, he added, has decided to ask the board of regents to increase the funds for agricultural purposes another $8,000.

"The public press has raised certain questions recently so our committee was anxious to determine the method of preparing the (university) budget," Hart's letter said. "The committee's findings on this are interesting and worthy of mention."

"First each department head of the university was asked to submit recommendations to the president and the board of regents. They, in turn, discussed the request of all departments in an attempt to formulate a policy.

"A total of $966,141 was asked for over what the university now receives from the state annually. The regents, as a matter of policy, decided they would not expect the state

Urge O'Connor To Earnestly Consider Proposed $434,000 Increase

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 22 (AP)—The Maryland Farm Bureau's Executive Committee has urged Governor O'Connor to give "earnest consideration" to a proposed $434,004 boost in the University of Maryland's state budget.

In a letter to O'Connor, P. C. Turner, farm bureau president, said the bureau was "vitaly interested" in the institution's state appropriation, part of which is used for agricultural purposes.

Turner said farmers need increasing aid.

The bureau's Executive Committee, he said, reviewed the university's proposed budget with university officials at a special meeting and approved it.

The bureau president did not mention the total sum of the university's budget but said a budget committee of the university's board of regents had pared down approximately

Police Blotter Reveals Crimes In New York

West Forty-Seventh Station Will Move to New Home Today

By Seth H. Moscovitz
NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—Men came to the West Forty-seventh street police station today and carted off the old blotter, the records of great and horrible crimes. For tomorrow "the busiest police station in the world" goes to the wreckers.

Once—seventy-eight years ago—there were twelve cops in "West Forty-seventh"—the "Broadway precinct." (cows in the street, too).

Tomorrow 300 policemen will parade up to their new $500,000 home on West Fifty-fourth street, where they'll find all the modern police gadgets—and venetian blinds over the windows.

No cop in town today knew all the criminal big and small fry who crowded into "West Forty-seventh." A few knew the late Jack "Legs" Diamond, prohibition-day mobster; fewer saw the body of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, lying in the station house back room, only two

Foreign observers were of the opinion that if Rumania joins the Axis military pact in writing, the ceremony would be reserved for tomorrow as a climax to the Rumanians' two-day visit ending Sunday morning.

FDR Says Britain Is Receiving All Possible Aid

Says British Can Expect Maximum Help from the United States

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—Dismissing as glittering generalities talk of expanding American assistance, President Roosevelt asserted today that everything possible was being done now to aid England.

He indicated at a press conference that under present conditions, a maximum of help for the British might be expected under the rule of thumb he laid down two weeks ago. Under it, half the output of American planes, weapons and other war material would go to Britain and half to the United States.

While there may have been outside discussion of granting credit to England and of allowing American warships to convoy merchantmen part way across the Atlantic, Mr. Roosevelt said there had been none in the government.

He disclosed that he had offered General John J. Pershing the position of ambassador to France last week but that the 80-year-old commander of the American Expeditionary Forces in the last war had declined it with deep regret on the advice of his doctors.

William C. Bullitt, present ambassador to France, submitted his resignation November 7. Mr. Roosevelt said that he had not yet accepted it.

He said he knew nothing except what he had seen in newspapers about reports that Joseph P. Kennedy would resign as ambassador to London.

While he expects to resume his inspection of national defense activities, the chief executive would not discuss times or places, beyond saying that some of the trips would be made next month.

Mr. Roosevelt cautioned reporters against saying it could be taken for granted that consideration was being given to increasing aid to Britain.

After challenging anyone to show him how plane production could be speeded up, he added that you can't pass a bill or issue an order and get aircraft the following day.

Rumania Seen As Next Member Of Axis Alliance

Premier Antonescu Has Extended Conference with Adolf Hitler

By ERNEST G. FISHER
BERLIN, Nov. 22 (AP)—The four men who held Axis-Rumanian relations in their hands held extended conversations today which foreign diplomatic observers insisted would make Rumania a fifth member of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo-Budapest Axis.

A conference among Rumania's iron guard Premier, General Ion Antonescu, his foreign minister, Prince Costin Sturza, and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop was followed by an extended meeting of the Rumanians with Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Von Ribbentrop's presence.

Foreign observers were of the opinion that if Rumania joins the Axis military pact in writing, the ceremony would be reserved for tomorrow as a climax to the Rumanians' two-day visit ending Sunday morning.

Not only is Rumania expected to sign up but also Slovakia, the German-protected state left by dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, and Bulgaria.

Swing Triumphant into Koritza; Athens Civilians Shout "On to Rome"

Government Spokesman Says Every Italian Soldier Has Been Pushed Out of Greece; Thousands of Prisoners Including Many Officers Reported Captured; Another Fascist Base Threatened

REPORTED CAPTURED

Capture of Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd (above) deputy to the chief air officer of the British Middle East command was announced by the Italian high command Nov. 21. The British air ministry admitted Boyd was missing. His plane landed in Sicily.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation said today that the message from Belgrade had reported the capture by the Greeks of the Italian Albanian base of Pogradetz.

It is said too, that London reports indicated that Italian bombing planes already were raiding Koritza, Albania, the base from which their troops had been forced to withdraw.

ATHENS, Nov. 22 (AP)—Greek troops, in pursuit of thousands of fleeing Italian soldiers, swung triumphantly into Koritza, big Fascist military base in Albania, today while celebrating civilians in the capital shouted "On to Rome!"

Twenty-five days after Italy started her invasion of Greece, government spokesmen said Greek troops had pushed every Italian soldier out of Greece, had captured thousands of prisoners including many officers and great quantities of guns and munitions.

At least 72,000 Italian troops have been forced out of the Koritza area, ten miles inside Albania, a government spokesman said.

(Fascist sources said only two divisions were withdrawing). Other Greek troops were said to be threatening the second main Italian base, Angliostro, eight miles within Albania and about fifty miles southwest of Koritza toward the coast.

Plunder Greek Villages
The Ministry of Home Security said the retreating Italians and "laid waste and plundered" Greek villages and claimed Greek women were mistreated and many taken as hostages.

"The town of Sayades was set afire," the ministry's communique said, "x x x Italians left behind unprecedented signs of savagery and barbarity."

Captured Italian equipment included eighty small and heavy guns, fifty-five anti-aircraft guns, twenty tanks, more than 1,500 motorcycles and bicycles, 250 automobiles, and munitions, fuel and clothing, the Greek high command said tonight.

Greek and British warplanes were reported bombing the fleeing lines of Italians.

A government spokesman asserted tonight that Koritza had been defended by six Italian divisions—72,000 to 80,000 men—and additional units of reinforced artillery and permanent fortifications.

This was the first official claim that the Italian disaster had been of such magnitude.

"The Italians declared only two divisions had withdrawn from the area."

Report Fall of Pogradetz
(The British Broadcasting Corporation estimated tonight that the Italians were no less than seven full divisions at Koritza and announced that according to a Belgrade dispatch, the Italian base at Pogradetz, Albania, also had fallen.)

Fascist troops retreating from Koritza were declared to have abandoned enormous quantities of equipment—so much, said the

Murray Asserts CIO Is the Labor Movement in First Line of Defense

Says It Is Only Guarantee against Failures of Last World War

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 22 (AP)—Philip Murray, newly elected CIO president, declared tonight that the CIO was "the nation's only guarantee that the miserable failures of the last world war" in the production of defense needs, would not be repeated.

"The CIO is the labor movement in our first line of defense," he said in a radio (CBS) speech.

"The mass producing industries of the mines, mills, factories and workshops by the strength and discipline of CIO unions have substituted industrial peace and stability for industrial warfare in these first lines of defense."

"This is essential to the successful prosecution of the federal government's national defense program."

"This definite, wholesome and constructive cooperation between management and labor in our vital defense industries makes the production of armaments for our armed forces in needed quantities and on time possible."

Murray said industry failed to do this job in the last war, asserting that relatively little of the guns and ammunition ordered were produced in time for use.

The new CIO chieftain said the convention, which elected him as John L. Lewis' successor, had adopted "a program of encouragement for the nation."

"CIO condemns the dictatorships and foreign ideologies of Communism, Nazism and Fascism," he added. "They have no place in this great modern labor movement."

Italians Admit Loss of Koritza To Greek Army

Fascist Reinforcements Are Rushed Up To Form New Battle Line

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ROME, Nov. 22. (AP)—The Italians formally acknowledged today the loss of their major Albanian base of Koritza to the counter-attacking Greeks, and General Ubaldo Soddu rushed up Fascist reinforcements to form a new battle line.

The general, who only twelve days ago was given command of the Italian campaign by Premier Mussolini, was expected to prepare the counter-attack with great care before beginning it. There seemed no immediate prospect of heavy action.

While the high command's official communique made little apparent effort to soften the fact of the forced withdrawal from Koritza—acknowledging "considerable" Italian losses and saying merely that Greek losses were "equally so, perhaps heavier."

Italian informants here stressed the retreating troops were but two divisions, a small part of the two Italian armies in Albania.

The high command likewise announced that in the Egyptian war theater British ships had bombarded the Fascist positions East of Sidi Barrani and at Uadi Maktila, but asserted there was no resulting damage.

For their part, the Italians claimed a successful bombing of railway centers and fortifications at the British Egyptian base of Matruh. The destruction of ten British tanks in a desert battle of Nov. 19 also was reported.

Fershing Declines

submitted to the French government for its approval, was not disclosed but informed quarters hinted that the appointee was someone who had not been prominently mentioned for the post.

It was reported tonight that Bullitt also had declined the post as ambassador to Great Britain but it could not be learned whether President Roosevelt had made another choice of a successor to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, now ambassador to Poland, was rated high among those mentioned for the post. Marshall Field of New York also was believed to be under consideration.

General Pershing's close friendship with Marshal Petain was said to have been a strong factor in his original selection for the Vichy post. Pershing's health has been bad for several years, however, and President Roosevelt said that physicians advised him against undertaking the assignment.

The president's announcement that the appointment had been offered to Pershing was considered here as a friendly gesture to Marshal Petain personally and an indication that it had been decided to normalize relations between the two governments.

It also was announced by Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, that a ship was leaving New York tomorrow with food and other supplies for Martinique as a result of a recent agreement with French officials on the Caribbean island.

The agreement, under which "frozen" French funds here were released for the purchase of supplies for Martinique, followed an investigation there by Rear Admiral John W. Greenleaf, who reported that the population was in serious need of supplies.

ing myself—was right or wrong, at least his heart was in the right place."

Lewis Keeps Pledge
By stepping down as CIO president, Lewis made good a pre-election pledge to resign if President Roosevelt were reelected.

Before banging down the gavel on the historic meeting, Murray promised he would not push into an immediate peace settlement with the American Federation of Labor and protested "against use of government pressure in an effort to force a shotgun settlement" with the AFL. In his speech acceptance, Murray outlined his plans to battle against what he called "the scheming hand" of the destruction of everything reflecting the spirit of true democracy.

He said he stood by Lewis's views on the best means of achieving labor peace. Murray joined with Lewis in calling upon the CIO unions for internal unity of action.

Standing in the same hall where five years ago he joined with Murray and other labor leaders to form the CIO, Lewis accepted a testimonial scroll with the declaration: "There is nothing to prevent the rolling onward of this organization except ourselves."

Praises Free Forum
Speaking slowly to a hushed audience, he said that the CIO's greatest contribution had been the giving of a "free forum" to the men and women of labor for their participation in the affairs of labor and the nation. He charged that the AFL "depresses and discourages the participation in its affairs of young members in labor unions."

Murray, in his plea for unity, warned "deeds count. Hard work

"I look forward with you," he declared, "to the day when our country and its people may be able to enjoy a broader security, a security that encompasses the well-being of all people through the nation, a kind of security that will drive from the temples of finances and industry rapacity, greed and selfishness, and that will mete out to x x x workers of this nation those things that God in his infinite wisdom decreed the masses of the universe should receive. x x x"

CIO's new leader came into the labor movement from the coal mines, as did Lewis. A quiet-spoken, 54-year-old Pittsburgh labor figure, he has been a close associate of Lewis for three decades. He was elected by acclamation at the organization's third annual convention.

Will Retain UMW Post
The CIO presidency pays no salary. Murray said he would retain his $18,000-a-year job as vice president of the United Mine Workers.

The convention adjourned after five days of voting, debating and speech-making by adopting a flood of resolutions and putting two new names on its roster of six vice presidents.

go back to work until the demand is met."

Picket lines which were established at 4:30 a. m., will be maintained, the spokesman added.

Hopes for an early settlement of the strike—which halted operations and suspended a $44,000 daily payroll for 7,500 workers—diminished after CIO union and company representatives conferred for five hours without reaching an agreement.

The union, however, called a meeting of members to "discuss the general situation" and in Washington, the Defense commission announced a labor department mediator would attempt to end the dispute.

Union leaders said the strike was called because the company refused to dismiss a sheet mill worker who, they said, threatened a union official and members of the official's family after he had been asked to pay delinquent union dues amounting to about $12.

General Strike Voted
The company declined to make a formal statement.

The strike began yesterday with a walkout of several hundred employees in a sheet mill. A general strike was voted at a meeting of the CIO's Aluminum Workers Union last night.

Suspension of operations tied up work on supplies for planes and other military equipment, including a $1,200,000 order for 25,000 sets of new-type United States army field kitchens.

A few score pickets took up posts outside the plant, thirty miles from Pittsburgh but there were no reports of disorders.

William Harker, spokesman for the union said the union "regretted the necessity of strike action" but asserted as long as the millworker was in the plant "we are not going in," adding:

"I want to make it clear that there are no radicals or Communists in our union."

Strike action was limited to the New Kensington works, biggest of the company's fifteen plants in the nation.

Baltimore Garbage Collectors Strike

BALTIMORE, Nov. 22. (AP)—Disposal service employees marched on city hall today asking a wage increase, while one-third of the city went without collection of garbage, ashes and trash because of a work-stoppage resulting from a demand for overtime pay.

A group of disposal service workers paraded in city hall plaza carrying signs reading "unfair to city employees" and "raise our wages. Firemen and teachers. Why not us?"

Meanwhile, another group was conferring about overtime pay with George M. Elliot, assistant engineer in the bureau of street cleaning.

Spokesmen for the marchers, about ninety in number, said they would send a delegation to see Mayor Howard W. Jackson and request a five-cent-an-hour increase in wages, a uniform forty-eight-hour week and overtime pay.

to make such an increase in the appropriation.

"They decided that the request should be reduced to a figure that would represent amount that could be completely justified on the basis of the university meeting reasonably well the demands made on it for services. Therefore the request was referred to a budget committee of the board for consideration of details.

Figures Presented

"The president of the university met with department heads and considered every item requested. At a subsequent meeting of the budget committee, figures were presented that should enable the university to operate its departments satisfactorily.

"Department requests were reduced from $966,141 to $434,004. We have surveyed the necessity of the budget increase with heads of all branches of our agriculture and satisfied ourselves of their necessity. It is to this increase that the executive committee of the farm bureau requests you to give earnest consideration."

"Of the $434,004 total increase requested, at least half of it is for various services rendered and it is not what would ordinarily come under the heading of education. We approve the form in which the university is making its request because this fact is clearly shown."

Japanese Arrest Two Americans

TOKYO, Nov. 23. (Saturday) (AP)—The newspaper Nichi Nichi in a dispatch from Hanoi said today a Japanese sentry had arrested Robert W. Linden, American vice consul, and Melvin Jacoby, a United Press correspondent, upon finding them in possession of a camera in the military zone at Haiphong, French Indo-China.

The two Americans refused to go to gendarmie headquarters, the dispatch said, and French authorities intervened and offered to investigate. Nichi Nichi said no films were found in the camera and it was surmised the Americans removed the film while enroute to French headquarters. The story described the event as an "act of espionage against the Japanese."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (AP)—The State department said late today that it lacked any official advice on the reported arrest of Robert W. Linden, American vice consul at Hanoi, French Indo-China, and American newspapermen by Japanese police for taking photographs in the military zone at Haiphong.

Officials said they probably would receive a report soon from Consul Charles S. Reed at Hanoi. The Japanese newspapermen by Japanese police for taking photographs in the military zone at Haiphong. Police Blotter remember the details of the strangling of "Dot" King, beautiful Broadway girl, whose jewels were considered—by someone—more important than her life.

Blotters Tell All
But the blotters tell it all. "Business" opened New Year's day, 1862; the crime was a mere ripple. "Weather clear and beautiful" was the first entry under Captain Johannes C. Slott. Days later came West Forty-seventh's first prisoner: "Della Maher—thirty years old, Irish, servant, single, drunk and disorderly, reads and writes."

Then came the draft riots of the Civil war; and murder, once rare on city streets, came frequently, as gamblers, touts, drug addicts and painted women turned toward the white lights.

A blotter entry for June 18, 1909, reads:

"An unknown woman, white, about 33, found dead in room occupied by Leon Ling, in trunk of fourth floor, rear hall room, 728 Eighth avenue—sash cord around neck. Trunk tied with cords."

The woman was Elsie Sigel, a Chinatown missionary, granddaughter of General Franz Sigel of Civil war fame. In the trunk were love letters to Ling.

In the stationhouse, Paul Sigel looked at the body of his daughter. His jaw stiffened.

"I don't know her," he said.

Ling Never Found
The West Forty-seventh cops never found Ling.

In July, 1912, sudden death came to Herman Rosenthal, the gambler: Four men drilled him as he stood in front of the old Hotel Metropole. One of the officers who looked over his body at West Forty-seventh was Lieutenant Charles Becker. Four years later he was electrocuted for the murder.

One night they brought in the earthly remains of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler. Some one had shot him in a hotel and tossed the revolver out the window. The killer never was apprehended.

Repeal of prohibition brought success in major crime.

But business never let up; the annual "take" is about 15,000 arrests, 30,000 summonses, 8,000 ambulance calls, 3,000 accidents.

Homemakers' Chorus To Practice for Christmas Cantata

The Allegany County Homemakers' Chorus will meet November 25 and the three following Mondays to practice for its Christmas cantata. The practices will be held in the city hall at 7:30 p. m.

In addition to the practice session November 25 a short business session will be held, according to an announcement by Mrs. G. R. Golladay, president.

Col. Thomas Will Confer With Flood Committee

Col. R. S. Thomas, United States Army engineer, will confer with members of Cumberland's flood protection committee at a meeting scheduled here Monday, December 25, it was announced yesterday by George G. Young, chairman.

In the meantime members of the local committee and the mayor and city council will review a set of plans forwarded here by Col. Thomas. The plans, comprising 166 pages of reading matter and two sets of maps, arrived yesterday at city hall.

Members of the flood protection committee are Fred T. Small, Henry W. Price, William Claus, John T. Jones, William L. Geppert, Thomas F. Finan and Young.

Local Man Receives Suspended Sentence on Game Law Charge

Carl P. Decker, 314 Prince George street, received a suspended sentence yesterday in trial magistrates court on a charge of "hunting with weapon capable of holding three or more shells in a magazine, which has not been cut-off or plugged."

Magistrate Frank A. Perdue suspended sentence on condition Decker pay court costs totaling $2.

District Game Warden Battle Mison preferred the charge.

drive out racketeers then they must yield the long-established right which gave unions alone the privilege of regulating their own affairs and cleaning their own houses.

"The AFL leadership wants racketeers driven out. The question is: how to do it? There are two things now before the convention, both intended to stop racketeering, but both pulling in the opposite directions.

Two Resolutions Offered

"First: the resolution introduced by David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers. This calls upon the convention to give the AFL (Executive committee) the power—which it now doesn't have—to go into unions and clean out gangsters.

"Second: the Executive council right now has a recommendation before the convention to strip itself of the power to suspend a union. In the same recommendation, of course, is the provision that it be given the right to suspend two unions, which is intended to throw out any unions involved in a dual movement against the AFL within the ranks.

"But the point is that if the Executive council is stripped of power to suspend a union, which is the council's supreme power and big stick, how can it walk into a union and clean it up?"

The racketeering resolution was spotlighted yesterday for the first time since the convention opened after Dubinsky charged he was thrice attacked by a New Jersey union leader over the measure.

Later he said the AFL had repudiated pledges made to him by President Green that the Executive council would be deprived of the power to suspend any AFL union.

Foreign Relations committee member, spoke of the possibility of freeing American shipping from the neutrality act restrictions which now keep it out of belligerent ports, but he too was awaiting specific legislation before committing himself.

He was flatly in favor, however, of repealing the Johnson act, which prohibits loans by this country to nations which have defaulted on their debts to the United States. Thus it forbids loans to Great Britain.

Johnson Ready to Fight
Meanwhile, the author of the act in question, Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) bluntly said that he would oppose any effort at repeal with all the vigor at his command.

Senator Nye (R-ND), one of the group which has vehemently opposed the administration foreign policy and has argued that help to Britain was leading to war said:

"Aid having been given in the beginning, we have broken the ice and now it is much easier to give more. But any further effort, whether to change the neutrality act or repeal the Johnson act ought to be fought vigorously."

Miss Bean Will Attend Conference in Baltimore

Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent, will attend the Maryland Extension Agent's Conference at Baltimore, December 5-6-7.

The conference is held for the purpose of discussing various problems and projects of the extension service and methods and means of bettering the work now being done.

She will also attend the sessions of the National Farm Bureau convention which will be held from December 8 to 12 inclusive.

Headquarters for the two events will be set up in the Lord Baltimore and Emerson hotels. This is made necessary due to the large number of persons attending the two meetings.

Tobacco Growers Will Vote Today On Crop Control

Proposals Give AAA Authority To Restrict Sale of Crops

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (AP)—Growers of burley, dark-cured and air-cured tobacco will vote tomorrow on proposals to give the agricultural adjustment administration authority to restrict sales of their crops.

The proposals grew out of the war's sharp curtailment of foreign markets and a consequent accumulation in this country of larger than normal supplies.

Officials estimated that 375,000 tobacco growers in fifteen Southern and Mid-Western states were eligible to vote in referenda to be conducted by local farmer committees under AAA supervision.

The AAA planned to hold three referenda—one for burley, one for fire-cured and one for air-cured.

Submit Two Proposals

Officials said President Roosevelt had arranged to sign amendments to the 1938 Crop Control act in time to permit separate referenda for fire-cured and air-cured types.

The law, prior to approval of the amendments, grouped all dark types of tobacco—fire-cured, air-cured and sun-cured—into one general class for purposes of marketing quotas.

Growers will vote on two proposals, namely, establishment of marketing quotas for a three-year period beginning with next year's crop, or establishment of quotas for the 1941 crop only. Quotas require the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the growers voting.

If marketing restrictions are approved for the three-year period, the national quota for 1941 will be 292,000,000 pounds for burley, 67,000,000 pounds for fire-cured and 28,000,000 pounds for air-cured.

To Apportion Allotments

If only on-year quotas are voted, the national marketing allotment will be somewhat smaller.

The national allotments would be apportioned among individual growers under a formula of the crop act. Sales in excess of quotas would be subject to a penalty of ten cents a pound on burley and five cents on the other types. Likewise, only growers who planted for maximum government benefit payments.

Growers of fire-cured tobacco approved three-year quotas in a referendum held last summer. States in which the referenda will be held include:

Burley—Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. Fire-cured—Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee.

Air-cured—Kentucky, Tennessee.

Training Course For Drivers Is To Be Proposed

Traffic Safety Committee Will Discuss Recommendations Friday

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 22. (AP)—Plans for a "drivers" training course for Maryland high school students and other safety legislation the governor's Traffic Safety Committee proposes to recommend to the legislature will be discussed next Friday in Baltimore by the group's executive committee.

Isaac S. George, general chairman of the Traffic Safety Committee, said the committee is studying a bill which would create a central statistical bureau, systematizing the collection and use of traffic accident statistics to prevent accidents.

A law should be passed, George said, requiring motorists to dim headlights when approaching other vehicles. "Our committee has campaigned for over a year to try and induce motorists to show this courtesy to other drivers but we find so many who will not observe this safety measure, we propose to make it mandatory."

"We also will urge the general assembly to pass a bill prohibiting anyone who has ever been convicted of a felony from being issued a license to operate a public conveyance, such as taxicabs.

"One of the most sought after pieces of legislation our committee is sponsoring is the one permitting the state roads commission to purchase land in excess of the actual roadbed so that proper control of access or entrance roads may be had."

"This would eliminate to a great degree many of the hazards occasioned by too many points of entrance or crossing on arterial highways."

Value of Music in Public Schools Is Outlined by Dr. Garry C. Myers

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

I am fifty-six years old. One Saturday afternoon, when I was a boy about twelve years old, I heard bagpipe music rendered by two traveling Scotchmen. It started up a few hundred yards away, on the hill in front of a neighbor's house.

Nothing I had ever heard sounded so wonderful to me. Excepting the harmonica, organ and banjo, I had never heard a musical instrument. However, we did do some singing at home, church and school.

A good many thousand other persons my age had no more exposure to instrumental music in their childhood, especially in rural places.

At the first teachers' institute I attended at the age of six when I began to teach, a hired string quartette played. Even in 1920 when I began lecturing at teachers' institute, the music was supplied from outside the schools. It was some years later before I heard an orchestra by school children at such meetings.

School Musicians

A year later when I lectured before the county teachers' institute of Franklin County, Pa., which I first attended as a teacher thirty-nine years before, excellent music was furnished by orchestras and choruses of school children, most of them rural children. During the last fifteen years the music supplied at conventions of teachers and parents in all the cities, counties and states where I have lectured has practically always been rendered by school children, and it has been of very high quality.

In Leesville, Crawford County, Ohio, is a good sample of a forward-looking music program by rural children, nearly all of whom live on farms. Out of the total enrollment of 248 children (sixty-nine grade children and 179 from grades seven to twelve inclusive), forty-three children of the grades and high school are in band and orchestra classes. The school band has twenty-seven children; orchestra, twenty-seven; drum corps, twelve; chorus, thirty. Then there are various ensembles as string, woodwind, trio, vocal groups, which have appeared on many programs and have broadcast on the air.

Special Direction

As you might suppose, there is leadership in this place. Mr. H. L. Bland is the musical director. He is known nationally, being the author of the thirty-minute series which include "Santa Claus," "Lincoln," "Washington," and "Pilgrims," each centered about music of the time indicated. These famous little operettas have been worked out by Mr. Bland with the aid of the rural school children of the Leesville area.

In these days of million-dollar stadia, used a few times a year, and bulging gate receipts at football games, it might be well to consider the character value of group music at school.

Six National Guard Officers Will Attend Fort Benning School

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 22.—(AP) Six National Guard officers will undergo physical examinations at Fort Hayes, O., December 11, preliminary to assignment to the Command and Staff School at Fort Benning, Ga., Brig. Gen. William L. Horner announced.

The officers are Lieut. Col. H. B. Cornwell, Charleston; Lieut. Col. M. Y. Heath, Fairmont; Major Dana R. Hamilton, Charleston; Major Charles D. Riley, Princeton; and Major Paul Shaffer and Major Clyde Welling, Morgantown.

Injuries Are Fatal To W. Va. Farmer

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Nov. 22.—(AP) James R. Costello, 66, Jefferson county farmer, died today of injuries received two days ago when he was thrown under the wheels of a horse-drawn grain drill after the animals became frightened at a dog.

Costello was returning home after completing wheat sowing near his home, when the horses bolted and ran off. He was thrown to the ground and under the wheels.

The farmer, a native of Warren county, Va., is survived by his widow, three sons, three daughters, and three brothers.

Guardsmen Are Eligible To Enter West Point

Four Die In Auto Accident

RICHLANDS, Va., Nov. 22.—(AP) Three-year-old Sylvia Sue Keene died in a hospital today, the fourth victim of a Thanksgiving day accident which killed her father, mother and aunt.

Joseph Milton Keene, 33-year-old miner of Crystal Block, Va.; his 32-year-old wife and his sister, Oma Ethel Keene, 24, were killed last night. The car in which they were returning from a visit to relatives crashed 300 yards down Deane mountain between Richlands and Grundy, Va.

Four other children are in the hospital, one of them, eight-year-old Jean Keene, critically injured.

Escaping with minor injuries, Elmer Keene brother of Joseph, walked a mile to get help. He said a tire blew out, causing the car to swerve from the narrow dirt road and plunge over the embankment.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHEN NOT TO LEAD TOP

AVERAGE players are usually taught that they should lead their top card when opening the suit bid by their partners. For years expert players violated that upon proper occasion until finally along came the late Wilbur C. Whitehead with advice as to just when a different card usually was a better lead. First of all, it was generally when you held at least four cards of your partner's suit, lacking the ace or touching honors. Secondly, it was when you had reason to believe the declarer had a secondary honor such as a twice guarded queen, which might get knocked off by you if you underled three headed by the ace or queen. In this case leading high would establish his card.

Pass	5♠	Pass	5♥

Everybody hates to be in a contract of five in a major suit or four in No Trumps, because it merely makes your job harder than being in a bare game, without any concomitant rewards for the greater risk. But South was lucky this time, because he had in the West a defender who always leads the top of his partner's suit.

After winning the first trick, West repeated with the J, won by the A, and East made it a third round, hoping that by forcing the dummy to ruff he could protect his own trump honor. But the Q won, a diamond being discarded, leaving declarer in position to have three rounds of high trumps. A small spade to the Q made possible one heart ruff, another to the K was followed by a second heart ruff, setting up the suit, and the spade A settled East's J. The diamond Q was an entry now to dummy, from which a heart furnished a diamond discard, making the contract.

Why should correct bidding, with all four players showing something, lead South into the correct contract on this deal, instead of the wrong one?

meaning East wanted the unnatural lead of the dummy's first-bid suit, especially since everything indicated him to have something in it. North had not rebid it, South had not supported it, and West himself had only one card, so East must have something worthwhile in spades. He therefore led the singleton to East's A and the latter returned the spade 9, a high card to indicate he wanted a lead of the higher ranking of the two side suits.

When West ruffed that second trick, he followed instructions with a lead of the heart 6, East trumping and thus setting the contract two. It could have been set still one more trick if West had been clairvoyant enough to open a heart.

South called it hard luck when he was beaten by the cross-ruff, but the others called it bad bridge, because he should not have played the hand at his suit, following some very unskilled bidding on his own part.

Your Week-End Lesson

Do you understand the play which is universally called the "grand coup"? Do you know how to recognize the situations in which such a play is necessary to make your contract? Can you set up working examples of a single, double and triple "grand coup"?

BEWARE OF CROSS-RUFF

WHEN THE two defenders have bid different suits, there is grave danger of a cross-ruff if you play the hand in a suit contract, especially a slam. It is well to think about trying No Trumps instead of your best suit in such a situation, as nobody has yet been known to ruff a trick in that declaration.

Britain Busy though We Lack Details

THOSE who sympathize with the Britons—and that includes just about all of us—doubtless become sickened and disheartened over the constant reports they read of the daily and nightly bombings of English cities, and are moved to wonder how long the British people can stand up under the terrific punishment.

Behind the British conservatism, stolidity and censorship, however, many things of a more favorable nature than that which is generally known may be happening. That seems to be the case judging from extracts from a letter received from Maj.-Gen. Ian Hay Beith, director of public relations in His Majesty's Service, by Col. George S. Wallace, of Huntington, W. Va.

As for Britain, Gen. Beith stated confidently that while its plight is admittedly serious, "the tide is turning in our favor."
"Our output of arms and equipment mounts day by day," Gen. Beith said, "and our people are resolute and cheerful." He expressed uncertainty as to how long the mutual destruction of England and Germany could continue saying that "the pace is so hot that it looks as if some one would have to crack." But, as Berlin "is being bombed methodically and roundly," Gen. Beith expressed belief that those most likely to crack will be the Berliners.

Gen. Beith gave some inkling of the terrific punishment being visited upon the enemy by the British.

Goering (German Air Marshal Herman Goering) promised them faithfully and long that no British bomber should ever penetrate to Berlin," Gen. Beith said. "But craters in Unter den Linden are something which not even the team of Goering and Goebels can explain away."

Beith pointed out also that Londoners had expected to be bombed, and are now philosophically accepting the destruction, while Berliners were certain their city was invulnerable.

"Another factor in our favor," he added, "is that the Royal Air Force bombers are far more efficient than those of the enemy because they methodically plan every raid and withhold their bombs until they have got right down on their targets, while the Germans merely jettison their loads." x x x

"Meanwhile, what our bombers are doing to Germany and German-occupied ports is nobody's business. Night after night they set out for Rotterdam, Ostend, Dunkirk, Calais, Boulogne, right down to Brest and Bordeaux. Berlin, Bremen, Hamburg and Kiel come in for regular attention." x x x

"There is a wretched place called Hamm, the largest railway junction in Europe, which is bombed so regularly that mere mention of its name in the nightly radio reports gets a laugh of its own."

In view of such reports, it is scarcely time for anybody to come to the conclusion that the British are beaten, or that they will be.

Boy Scout Training an Aid for Emergencies

WHILE training of young men for military service in case of need occupies much of the public attention today, Cumberland people should remember that such training has no place in the program of the Boy Scouts of America.

There was a day, before the aims and methods of Scouting were well known, when the public suspected that the trim khaki uniforms of this new organization betrayed a warlike nature. The record of the World War rectified that mistake. The youngsters were active in helping win the struggle, but it was not as an auxiliary of the army or navy. Rather, the Boy Scouts worked at home, where they sold millions of dollars worth of Liberty bonds, gathered tons of fruit pits for gas masks, and located thousands of walnut trees for the aircraft industry. Their record was a brilliant one.

With the nation focusing its attention on defense, and with the government launching the greatest preparedness program in history, it is significant that the Boy Scouts are also working on their own emergency training plank. It calls for intensified practice in the activities for which Scouting is already best known.

Boys must be ready for any form of service, whether it be a house-to-house canvass or sudden mobilization to meet a natural disaster. Troops must be up to their full strength of thirty-two Scouts each and many new troops must be organized. Equipment—signal flags, hatchets, ropes, uniforms and first aid kits—must be procured and paid for by the boys themselves. Adult volunteer leaders have to be found and trained.

The result is profitable to the community. Boy Scout training has its greatest scope in our everyday life, when boys are formed into useful citizens, taught to care for themselves and trained for all-round service to the nation. In times of emergency the value of this preparation becomes apparent.

Italy's System May Be Somewhat Responsible

THE REPULSE of Italians from Greece is too dramatic not to give rise to a great deal of sounding off, triumphant, apologetic, speculative. "Italians driven off Greek soil!" "The Greeks take the base of Kritza!" "Greeks routed in Pindus!" Some few believe Greece to be saved—others see this as the first drive only, which will recur next time with Hitler's help. Almost everyone is thinking something derogatory about the Italians. All except Dorothy Thompson. Remember Dot?

Dot's article on the subject is refreshing for what is meant to be detachment and fairness, but her detachment seems too complete, her fairness quixotic. She explains the temporary defeat of the Italians on the grounds that they didn't want to fight there anyway. Part of their reason for this is that they fear and dislike Hitler; they don't understand the Berlin-Moscow part of the Axis after what went on in Spain.

The Ethiopian campaign was different, that was their own war, they were "bringing civilization" to a barbarian people. But Greece is not their battle, so they go into it half-heartedly and are licked. Also, Miss Thompson says, the Italians are too lucid, intelligent and civilized a race to prosecute such a war successfully.

That the Italian race is what she says it is need perhaps not be denied in order to assert that the part played by its Fascist leaders in recent world affairs has been despicable. If the Fascists fear Hitler, as probably they do, their whole conduct has been one of sordid compromise of which this Greek campaign is merely another instance. If they are for Hitler, they have supported him in an inefficient and cowardly manner.

If they are too "intelligent" or too "lucid" to be able to make up their minds, it is an example of the straits to which this form of "civilization" may bring a people.

The Reason for That Early Christmas Feeling

CHRISTMAS isn't coming earlier this year—it just seems earlier. That is because Christmas shopping already has begun in good earnest. Anyone doubting that should push through the crowds and note the popularity of the fine displays of Christmas goods.

With this fact established, there is real point to the advice, "Do your Christmas shopping early!" If there is a rush now, what will it be later! More people have money to spend this year.

So it is well to be in at the beginning. Stocks are fresh and service is better, which leads to something else that friendly folk will consider. By shopping early, shopping with a list and, as far as the old schedule permits, avoiding the rushing hours, things will be made much easier for those who patiently assist Santa Claus in the stores.

According to the map, the Italian boot points the wrong way. This is on the assumption that the home team's stand in Greece makes it advisable to punt.

Germany may prohibit alcoholic beverages, we read. On the occasion of the next Nazi anniversary Hitler probably will make his speech in a near beer hall.

The Browser's Findings

By MARSHALL MASLIN

If you were to ask the Browser to give the name of the man he considers one of the most civilized alive today, he would not hesitate long. He would say, "Lin Yutang, of course."

This Chinese gentleman, widely and profoundly read, author of "The Importance of Living" and "My Country and My People," urbane and witty and intelligent and deeply serious is one of the best products of civilization. (Please note that the Browser did not write "OUR" civilization.)

Whatever Lin Yutang writes has power to delight and this is true even when he is thrusting at our western prejudices and predilections. It is true of his longer pieces and of his shorter ones and the next time you are in a brown mood, you should dip into the pages of "With Love and Irony" (John Day). You will have a lot of fun... because Lin Yutang is interested in everything and not afraid to write about it.

For example in analyzing England's greatness he will attribute it to the Englishman's inability to think logically. "The English people think but never allow themselves to be lost in their own thoughts," he advises American womanhood: "Go out and get a man by hook or by crook," and he adds: "Whatever you say about the suppression of woman in China, remember that every Chinese woman gets married."

As for America, he likes hot dogs but not at an open air stand. He likes everything about the radio except its programs. He likes Burbank pears and fragrant American apples and the resonant voices of Americans but he hates clam broth and "robust" American boys crooning pseudosentiments in pseudo-soft voices. He is amused when the American man refuses to give a lady his seat, but enraged when he leaves an old man standing.

As for the American cocktail party "it is a place where you talk with a person you do not know about a subject you have no interest in." He likes Mickey Mouse and thinks "the comic strips have brought more good to humanity than volumes of socialist propaganda." He says flatly that he loves birds and hates dogs. He is a vegetarian who enjoys a good steak. He practices nudism but only in the bathtub. He approves of kowtowing as a calisthenic measure.

He says there were never any coolies in China until the Europeans created them. He likes beggars, likes to talk to women and likes them just as they are, and he is profoundly and unalterably convinced that "life is worth living for its own sake." That belief is the core of Lin Yutang's civilized nature. It keeps him uniquely sane in a mad world.

Mildred Cram doesn't say that her new novel "Kingdom of Innocents" (Knopf) is an allegory of modern England. Her publishers do not imply it, either. Nevertheless the Browser has a hunch that when Miss Cram wrote this book she thought of England as a nation fixed for too long a period in an adolescence that was almost fatal.

Her tale is of two charming children, Richard and Joan, son and daughter of two ancient British families, who were allowed to decide when they were in their teens that they would never become adult. Physically they were to mature but in their hearts they were to remain children, insulated from the worries and prejudices and bitternesses of adult life. They are children of wealth who refuse to accept the "responsibilities of their station in life," so that inevitably they are surrounded by vultures and parasites and seducers—and forced to break the pledge of eternal childhood and to return to the responsibilities of growth.

The writing is beautiful but the Browser isn't exactly crazy about allegorical tales. Are you?

BOOK ENDS: Duell, Sloan and Pearce have brought out a lavishly illustrated edition of Erskine Caldwell's "Tobacco Road" (the novel, not the play).

Olin Downes and Elie Siegmeister's "Treasury of American Song" was published by Howell, Soskin on October 20th. Rex Miller, author of "I, Paul," an "autobiography" of the great apostle, is a West Coast newspaperman. Sylvia Townsend Warner, the English novelist is somewhere on the east coast of England sorting salvage and picking trout... That's plenty from Marsh Maslin.

Convoy Proposal A Real War Move, Gen. Johnson Says

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—One important aspect of the recent election was that it did not debate to any clearness of conclusion what is meant by the phrase, "all aid to Britain short of war."

As a result, those publicists of press and radio, who want to shoot the works even if it is committed that any great tightening of the British military position would leave no honorable course open but complete involvement, are implying that their opinion was underwritten by the election. The qualification "short of war" begins to carry a tone of irony. It is hard to see how any such attitude can be justified. That issue was not presented or voted on. Both candidates pledged "aid to Britain short of war." Both promised to keep this country out of war. Neither defined "short of war."

Many Apprehensive

In the contacts of this writer with tens of thousands of people during the autumn, it seemed clear that most of them had great apprehension about where our course in this direction is carrying us. Those who advocate it have conducted one of the cleverest campaigns of its kind in my recollection—both in the press and on the air.

In spite of all that, I still believe that it is the overwhelming wish of our people to make this country feebly impregnable, to give embattled Britain every aid we can without violating our own obligations of laws and treaties, and without either too much weakening our own defense or too rashly risking action that would make our participation unavoidable.

An example of the latter risk is the proposal made by many that we relieve pressure on the British navy by having our navy "convoy" British supply fleets from America halfway across the Atlantic ocean. Our "convoy" a merchant fleet by sending warships with it to prevent any of its ships from being molested by its enemies.

Realistic Also

Under the laws of war, however, merchantmen are subject to their enemy's right of search and seizure or, in some instances, sinking. The only way our naval convoys could prevent a belligerent's exercise of that right would be to fire on him. If we were there in force that would mean a naval engagement—and we should be at war.

The advocates of this cause say that such an engagement is "legalistic." That is saying, in other words, that the German chancellor said, when in performance of her treaties, Britain went to war over the 1914 invasion of Belgium—war over "a scrap of paper." It may be a legalistic argument, but it is the most realistic deduction imaginable. We should then be at war. Regardless of protestations and campaign promises, we should have to finance most of our allies and fight wherever, on the surface of the globe, the swaying fortunes of war took us.

Not What People Want

It is not necessary to our defense. Its risk of loss far outweighs any promised gain. It is not what our people want. If they are inched and edged over that brink, as they have been constantly inched and edged toward it, there could be such resentment as to put us into war without the most necessary element—flaming popular support and a justly indignant will to war.

There are many indications of popular fear of something like this. That is why Congress wouldn't adjourn. That is why such non-interventionist senators as Hiram Johnson, Bob La Follette, Bert Wheeler, Arthur Vandenberg and David Walsh were returned.

The case of the convoys is only one of several other courses now actively being urged which could also make war inevitable. There is no space to discuss the others here. But I propose to discuss them from time to time. They are not, as yet,

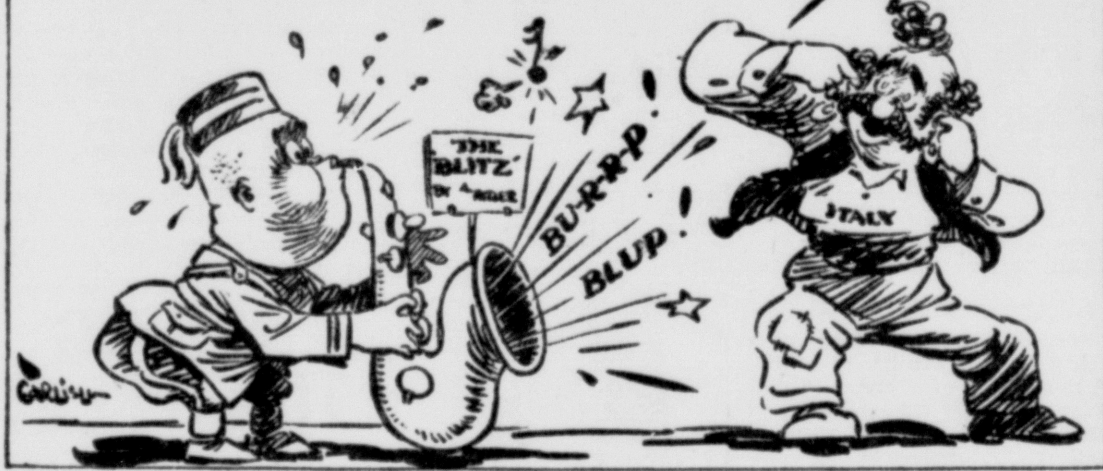

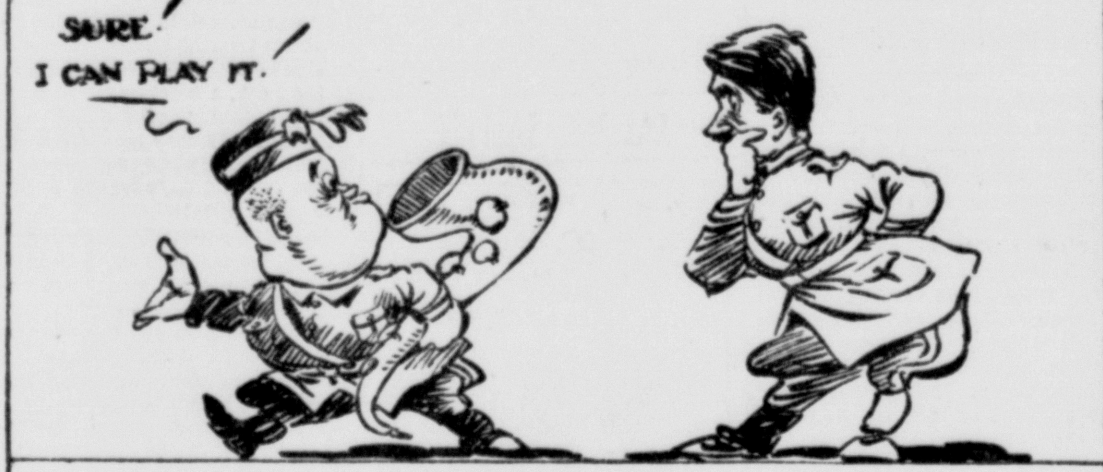

VISITING LABORITE

THE MASTER AND HIS PUPIL

Three Reasons Are Cited As Causing Defeat of Adjournment by Congress

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—For the determination of Congress to remain in session, there were two concrete, major reasons. Besides some general considerations, one major reason is to be found in a bill the house had acted upon just the day before it decided not to adjourn.

It was a quite unimportant bill—under ordinary conditions it would have passed perfunctorily. But the bill was a conferring of authority on the president. The authority was slight—it was merely that he might appoint "an under secretary in the department of War."

Had the bill stopped there, it would have excited no attention. But the bill went on with words which were to Congress a signal for pause:

"... to serve during any national emergency declared by the president to exist, including the present limited emergency."

Immediately upon introduction of the bill by Representative J. Joseph Smith of Connecticut the following colloquy took place:

Mr. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts: "Will the gentleman tell us whether this legislation is an official request from the administration?"

Mr. Smith: "It is an official request from the War department with the approval of the president."

There followed brief colloquy which brought out clearly the state of mind of Congress. The colloquy was completely good natured. It was made completely plain there was no objection to creating the office of under secretary of war. It was recognized there is need for an under secretary at this time. As put by Mr. Martin: "I do not wish to put any obstacle in the way of the War Department functioning properly and efficiently... I am not opposed to the creation of the office at this time. I am only opposed to the way the bill is framed."

The objection was wholly to seven words, the words quoted above, about "emergency declared by the president."

Courteously, Mr. Martin suggested that the bill be withdrawn for the moment "so that we may see if we cannot reach an agreement." Courteously this was done. Quickly agreement was reached. After a few minutes, the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Smith, proposed an amendment which dropped the words objected to, and substituted others. By comparing the dropped words, quoted above, with the new words, the reader will grasp much about the whole situation at Washington. The new words are:

"The provisions of this act shall cease to have effect on January 20, 1945, unless continued in force by an act of Congress."

Instantly the changed form of words was adopted. Instantly the bill passed.

Had the Democratic leaders followed that incident in the House on November 18, they would not have been surprised when, twenty-four hours later, the House voted not to adjourn.

Congress has concern about what Mr. Roosevelt might do if Congress is away. Congress remembers that last September 8, a time when Congress was not in session, Mr. Roosevelt declared a "limited emergency," under which he exercised certain powers. That action has never set well with Congress. That action called the word "emergency" to be a warning signal to Congress. Much of the objection to the original wording of the present bill lay in the charge that it seemed to give congressional confirmation to the president's action of last September.

More broadly, Congress apprehends that the administration, or some in it, may use the emergency of preparedness, or war, to get for the executive powers which are appropriate for war, which must be given for war—but may not freely surrender those powers after the emergency is ended. It will be found that Congress, in passing legislation to give the president emergency powers, will do as they did in the present case—fix a date upon which the powers expire, not leaving it to the executive to say when the emergency is over.

There was another concrete reason for Congress declining to adjourn. The decision was in the hands of the House—and the House had cause for resentment in the history of two bills. The House had passed both bills overwhelmingly, and in good time. The Walter-Logan bill last April, by three to one; the Labor act amendments last June, by two to one.

But although those bills had been introduced in the Senate about the same time as in the House, that is, nearly two years ago, they have never been acted upon by the Senate. During all that time, the labor amendments have been kept in the Labor committee of the Senate, upon which happens to be a strong representative of friends of the administration. The Walter-Logan bill had been postponed again, upon request of Senate Leader Barkley, accompanied by promises it would be brought up later.

This delay, some in the House felt, whether rightly or not, might not be free from political motive on the part of the administration and its friends in the Senate. And the House saw that if there was adjournment now, the bills would be dead—the stytle would be successful. The House declined to adjourn.

A Good Thought For Americans

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Senator Burke, of Nebraska, in an after-election letter to Wendell Wilkie gave this explanation of his decision to leave the Democratic party and become a Republican:

"The question for all but the hidebound partisan to answer is in which group he can more effectively battle for the principles in which he believes. It has become increasingly clear to me that the Democratic party, despite splendid accomplishment, cannot be depended upon under its present leadership to stand fast for the things that appear to me to be essential for the permanent well being of our country."

We suggest that all citizens who sincerely believe in American principles think over what the senator says.

Water Front Is Seen as Source Of Many Tales

By EDWIN C. HILL

We strolled down around the Battery and into South street the other day just to have a look at the waterfront before the new Brooklyn undersea tunnel and its approaches and feeders rub out quite a slab of our revered past. You can still find some old tattooing parlors and a few mellow old bars, one or two curio shops, catering to seamen, and, in the backroom of a ship-chandler's shop, you can find also a wizened little old man at work on the almost lost art of scrimshawing—tattooing whale's teeth. But it won't be long, now. Today, aided and abetted by Bob Moses, deals yesterday a lethal punch as this backwash of rum and romance becomes the entrepot for millions who still shuttle quite unromantically under the sea.

Edwin C. Hill

Memories Prompted

Seeing that deeply moving and most skillful devised picture, "The Long Voyage Home," is apt to start you wandering along the waterfront if you have a little spare time on your hands. There's the shanghaing episode. You think of the "crimping" days and the long and courageous fight of the late Andrew Furuseth to end the racket of kidnapping and selling seamen into slavery.

Is there anybody down on South street who remembers those days? Not many, among the lads who came along in the days of steam. But here and there is a wrinkled old salt, just puttering around, perhaps a watchman or a swamper in a joint where they still sell the sailors' brand of greased-lightning. He'll be garrulous enough, after your friendly intercession with the bartender.

Like Picking Blackberries

There's priceless literary salvage in these passing waterfronts, this one particularly—and any bright lad could gather a basketful of stories down there just like picking blackberries. This matter of "crimps," for instance, is long overdue for the duflie-bag of some good writing man. Here's Axel Lundberg, still riding sailing ships if he can find them, at the age of seventy-six. His story of Three-Fingered Jack is but one among many.

The sprints frequently were keepers of sailors' boarding houses, where they doped their guests with bad liquor and sold them usually for the standard price of $60, the merchandise being stiff as a plank when it was heaved on the forecastle. San Francisco was a crimp's paradise, with their dumps all along the water-front, and Three-Fingered Jack was the meanest and toughest, also the most cunning among them. Like many of the others, he had a trapdoor in his barroom, through which the unconscious sailor was dropped into a little boat, for delivery, C.O.D., to a ship anchored out in the harbor.

A Big Solemn Swede

One Saturday evening, there appeared in Jack's place, a big solemn Swede from the San Joaquin Valley. Jack insisted on serving the customer personally. As the night wore on into the morning, the Swede was standing up as straight as an iron hitching post. All liquid dynamite might have been so much morning dew for all the effect it had on this descendant of the Vikings. Jack uncorked everything from blue vitrol to Paris green without so much as stirring a flutter of the big Swede's eyelids. It was then he employed strategy.

"Pretty bad liquor we're getting these days," he said.
The Swede agreed that it was so. "I've got a friend on a ship out in the bay that's got some good liquor," said Jack. "Let's go out and get some."

The Swede thought that would be a good idea. It was just before dawn, silently, Jack, in his little boat, with the Swede in the stern, pulled alongside a big clipper ship, just getting her sails set for a run to Singapore. The Swede appeared to be dozing. Jack called out softly: "Gimme a bow-line; I got a man for you here."

Sock on Chin

The line was lowered, but the big Swede didn't happen to be dozing. He socked Jack with a mule-kick wallop on the chin, looped the line over him and called out, "Heave away, dere."

"When Jack's singularly ugly countenance appeared over the rail, he was saluted by a kick in the face by a mate whom he had once shanghaied. For three years, they booted him all over the seven seas before they landed him. He became a crimp emeritus. Axel makes one reservation about this story. He isn't quite sure whether it was Three-Fingered Jack or British Bill who had this misadventure. However, they were much alike—singularly unpleasant citizens, and Axel is sorry it couldn't have happened to both of them.

We're saving up the story of Chicken Devine, the "shoulder-striker," meaning a runner for the crimps, and how he collected $60 for a dead man; the adventure of the Cape Cod parson, the story of the Whitehall boatman and a dozen others that came along with the above. Some laid with a limber writing wrist is going to find something like the tallings of an old gold mine along this changing waterfront.—Copyright, 1940, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

PRICE-FIXING IS LAID TO EYEGLASS TRADE

Groups and Persons Ruling 95% of Lens Business in Nation Are Indicted

FLEEING OF PUBLIC SEEN

Evidence Is Said to Show $20 Spectacles Could Be Sold Profitably For $7.50

A general system of price-fixing by which the cost of eye-glasses throughout the country has been kept unnecessarily high during the last decade was charged yesterday in four indictments handed up here by a Federal grand jury. The defendants include fourteen manufacturers, five wholesalers, three trade associations and twenty-one individuals.

These defendants, it was said, make and distribute 95 percent of all the eyeglass lenses sold in the United States, as well as most of the frames for them. Government investigators that led to the indictments disclosed that they would be indicted for the filing of two civil suits. The ultimate object is a lowering of the price to the public, it was said.

Heavy Overcharging Alleged. The indictments, charging violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, are based on allegations of price-fixing of goods sold in interstate commerce. The degree to which the ultimate cost to the consumer may have been inflated did not concern the investigators. It was said. However, one estimate was that a pair of eyeglasses selling for $20 might well bring a good profit if sold for $7.50.

A Search for a Lost Diamond, and a Romance That Almost Got Lost in the Shuffle

By MARGE LALLY

Bill Blake and his bride were the happiest couple in the world as they boarded the Florida-bound train on a snowy January night in Chicago. The honeymoon trip, as well as the received from a sensational law case just closed.

"Honey, it's a beaut," said Bill, as he settled himself in the compartment and gazed admiringly at the ring.

The Ring Could Not Be Found.

"I'm afraid I'll wake up and find I've been dreaming, Bill."

As Bill turned the ring gently around her finger, he remarked, "Be careful of this rock until we get back and get some insurance on it, sweet, it's loose on your finger."

"I'll keep my wedding ring above it, as a guard, darling, and I won't take it off," replied Mary, as she cuddled close to Bill.

The City of Miami proper was full of people but Mary and Bill found the ideal spot, in a cozy hotel, across the Bay of Biscayne at Miami Beach. . . where the water swished under the windows and the palm trees rustled above. Life was beautiful and both of them were living it to the fullest.

When Mary came out of the beauty salon, Bill was standing outside, waiting for her and as he gave her a little squeeze, he said, "Where do we eat? Shall we stay over here for a change?"

"No, dear, let's go back to the hotel. Isn't it extravagant to eat somewhere else when we are paying for the food at the hotel?" queried Mary.

"All right, here comes a bus," answered Bill, contentedly. They held hands and chatted all the way toward the bay.

The bus stopped at their corner. Mary cried out, "My ring is gone."

"When did you notice it last?" asked Bill.

"At the beauty parlor—the girls were admiring it and I took it off to show them because I was so proud of it—I forgot to put the wedding ring on top when they gave it back to me."

"Stupid of you, wasn't it?" Bill's tone of voice was sharp.

The bus driver searched everywhere, with his flashlight, but the ring could not be found. Mary was hysterical. It was dark by now, anyway, so Bill took her to the hotel and waited until daylight to get the porter, then the two of them sifted the sand about where the bus stopped . . . after that Bill went to Miami proper, covering the same ground they had come over the night before . . . talked with the girls in the beauty shop, and finally ended the day by inserting an ad in the local paper, offering a reward for the return of the ring.

He was so thoroughly provoked with Mary because she had taken the ring off her finger that he didn't feel like eating or seeing her, so he sat down on a comfortable park bench to meditate for awhile. "Strange that Mary couldn't remember when she saw the ring last . . . she should have been more careful — this was like throwing money in the fire." He was cross with himself, too, because he knew he should have found time, somehow, to have insured the ring. When he woke up the next morning it was late, and he was stiff from sleeping on the park bench.

Mary was in the room, with the door wide open, when he came in — she was packing her bags. Neither spoke. After a shave and bath he changed into the suit he had worn the day the ring disappeared and started toward the door, again, when Mary spoke. "Did you find out anything, Bill?"

"What could I find out when you saw the ring last?" he almost yelled at her.

She began to cry. "You act as though I did it on purpose. If you are going to assume this attitude, I'm going home."

"Go ahead and see who cares," said Bill, trying to be unconcerned. "Do you really mean that?" sobbed Mary.

"I'm afraid you're a spoiled brat and I had to marry you to find it out." He pouted like a schoolboy and Mary was so hurt by now that she thought, "I hate him, I won't stay another day, he doesn't care about me, anyway, or he wouldn't talk this way. I guess the ring meant more to him than I did. I'll leave on the next train."

As soon as he left the room, she finished packing and called the porter to put her baggage in a cab for the station.

The train would be pulling out soon and Mary was just as miserable today as she was happy the day she arrived . . . and on top of the loneliness crept the fear that she might never see Bill again. Perhaps he wouldn't bother to look for her. At that thought, she became panicky and wanted to go back.

Bill rushed into the car and grabbed her and one of her cases, yelling at the porter to get the other two, and as the train pulled out he gathered her in his arms and begged "Forgive me."

She was so glad to be back in his arms that she didn't care about anything else . . . he took her hand and put it in his coat pocket—she pulled out the ring, stammering, "Where did you find it?"

"Right where you found it off on the bus when we were holding hands."—(Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.)

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

"YOU WONDER sometimes what people would think of you if they knew what you were really like—wonder if they'd find you worth knowing if you weren't a celebrity. I do."

"When you take a couple of drinks sometimes they make you feel like something you aren't."

The words Vance had spoken in her apartment came back to Kit. He had said then there were things she wouldn't understand. They were clear to her now.

"I only told you this, Kit, because I want you to know that you can't let your chance go until you've proved to yourself and the world what you can do."

Kit clasped her hands around her knees and looked up at him. "Thanks, Vance—thanks for telling me and coming up here to try to help me. I had to run away to think. And thinking, I can't see any way to go back and take Semblar's money when I give nothing in return."

"You're going to give plenty in return. You've got a throat, a voice, a heart and a mind."

"Did you ever hear a canary burst into song when his night cover is taken off? He doesn't sing because he has a contract that calls for a trill at nine o'clock in the morning. He sings because he's part of the sunshine he sees."

"I suppose you think singing is as easy as that?"

"I'm no Webster, but I can tell you that song is more than a melody. It's something that comes out of your mind and your heart and your memory as well as your throat."

"Oh, Vance, if you'd seen what the critics said!"

"They're right. You haven't got anything but a good throat and good notes. You haven't done anything but READ words and music, something that passed between your eyes and your throat without getting anywhere near your emotions or your understanding. That's not your fault. It's because you don't know people."

"Don't know people? Why Vance, the Semblar audience numbers—"

"Did you ever see 'em? Look into their faces? Hear the murmur of their voices? The clasp of their hands? Or the silence that can follow a song? No! And until you see audiences and FEEL them, you won't know how to sing. You aren't going to sing for YOUR pleasure; you're going to sing for them. You're going to put something into a song, THEIR song as the feel it. Did you ever sing for an audience?"

"In a church choir and when Fran and I used to do our act."

"The congregation had its back to you and you probably never sang as well as you did when you and Fran sang together. You ought to sing for all kinds of audiences, tough audiences, sick audiences, demanding audiences! You ought to see the white faces of sick veterans, the bland faces at men's conventions, the faces of crippled children, the amateur night crowds. That's the only way you'll grow up to what they want. Total quality is earned. It comes from the heart where you store up joy and sorrow and desire and understanding."

"Why didn't I know this before it was too late?"

"You've got an iron-bound contract for twenty-six weeks more. In that time I'll make a singer out of you."

"Vance! How could you?"

"I'd fire Heller and turn you over to a guy named Rudy Armendi, who'll browbeat sense and song into you. He'll feed you spaghetti and red wine and philosophy. He'll show you the souls in people. He'll make you laugh and he'll break your heart, and he'll open your closed little mind to what music means when it is a part of life. He'll make you sing when you think you can't and when you want to, he'll make you lie on the floor and meditate. But when he gets through, you'll know that singing is more than mouthing notes and words."

Kit felt excitement beating against her ribs.

"I'll do the rest. The whole idea may sound crazy, but it makes sense. I'll give you a new name and a new start. As Mary—Mary Moore, let us say, I'll get you the engagements an unknown singer would be glad to get. Then, you can go out and really earn a place for yourself. Will you do it, Kit?"

"She ran her fingers through her hair. 'I—I can't answer you now, Vance.'"

Vance's eyes were suddenly dead; his voice was indifferent.

"Okay, forget it. When do these fireworks come off?"

Kit's glance followed his pointing finger, and she saw the fireworks frames for the first time. "Tomorrow night, I suppose. Sunday's the Fourth, you know. What fun!" Her voice was childishly pleased. "I'll carry me back to my kid days. I used to love the Fourth. I like the noise, and the excitement and the feeling of something deeper, a significance." There was something eager and real in her voice, something that rekindled a light that had died in Vance's eyes.

"I suppose there'll be a parade," he said.

"Of course! And a picnic. And there'll be the leading orator making a speech. And a band concert!"

Vance said pensively, "I can SEE it. The old fellows in their faded uniforms . . . and the D. A. R. gals in their best white . . . the kids with scrubbed faces. I can taste the home-made cake and fried chicken at the picnic."

Kit said, "The best you'll ever taste."

Vance went on as if he had not heard her. "The orator will talk about what a fine country this is and the trombone player will flat his high notes and nobody'll even notice it."

People Become Upset because Of Conditions

Physician Says Much Sickness is Result of Maladies of the Soul

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

My friend Dr. A. E. Hertzler lives out in Halstead, Kansas, and gets wise. A lot of the rest of us are rushing around in the city, getting a house and lot, and an automobile, and a lot of clothes we don't need, and acquiring excitement and information while he sits on the prairie and goes to the root of things. He wrote, if you will remember, "The Horse and Buggy Doctor."

Now he comes out with another book, "The Doctor and His Patients," and explains how in his experience people get upset and sick, not because of germs and cancers, but because of bad adjustments in lives and living conditions and human relationships.

Courageous Book

It's a very curious book—and a very courageous book for Dr. Hertzler to write because he knows all about the physical side of disease. I have a complete set of his works on surgical pathology—ten or twelve volumes—illustrated by photographs of the hundreds of specimens he has collected in the course of his surgical work. So he knows all about bad appendices, and gallstones, and gotters, and all the rest of it. But here he writes an entire book about how much sickness is the result of maladies of the soul.

There are plenty of examples of Dr. Hertzler's humor. He is a little suspicious of the value of a prolonged university education nowadays. He tells the story of a woman who taught Greek in a state university and who gave it up to get married and have a baby. She called Dr. Hertzler once and as he hove in sight she said, "There isn't a single thing in Goodwin's Greek Grammar that tells what to do for a yelling child." A trained nurse, with a high school education, would have known what to do.

Agrees with Book

Even though closely associated as I am with university life, these remarks arouse a responsive chord in me. I visited a great university the other day and saw literally hundreds of students lying around

Doctor's Formula Helps Liver Bile Flow Freely

Right Way To Relieve Constipation and Feel "Tip-Top" In Morning

If liver bile doesn't flow freely every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So step up that liver bile and see how much better you should feel! Just try Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. Edwards for his patients with constipation and sluggish bile.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful! They not only stimulate bile flow to help digest fatty foods but ALSO help elimination. Get a box TODAY! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢. All drugstores.

on the campus, toying with their books. When my father and mother were that age they were married and had started in business in a new country. Now there is no new country and no new business. Those young people on the campus are temporizing with life; they have no thirst for knowledge, nor are they destined to be great scholars. They are simply breeding some swellelegant neuroses.

Dr. Hertzler has a good deal to say about marriage, and divorce, and youthful love. To quote again, he feels that the social workers who specialize in the divorce problem are a queer lot. One he knew was on the surface a sweet, reasonable, gentle, little lady, but underneath she was a cruel, nagging pagan who loved to see others suffer, especially her husband. The husband's doctor urged him to buy a one-way ticket to South America and save his health. But his duty made him keep on and he was fed bromides for years, until finally he took his own life.

I believe Dr. Hertzler's book is the answer to those who constantly ask me to recommend a book on "Love and Marriage."

Football and Toscanini Concert Are Highlights on the Airwaves

Several Music Features Are Scheduled for Sunday

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD,
Associated Press Radio Editor
NEW YORK, Nov. 23—Arthur Toscanini returns to the conductor's podium of the NBC Symphony orchestra via WJZ-NBC at 10 o'clock Saturday night for another season. The concert will come from Carnegie hall, New York. Instead of Radio City, and besides transmission over the chain will be sent out on the short waves particularly for Latin-America. The program will include Verdi's Requiem.

The football list as far as announced for the chain will include these games:

Ohio State-vs-Michigan at 1:45 p. m. on MBS.

Penn-vs-Cornell at 1:45 on WABC-CBS and WEAF-NBC.

Notre Dame-vs-Northern via WJZ-NBC at 2:15.

James Melton, and Marion Claire, with Nathaniel Shilkret conducting, will play the leads in "Eileen" as the opera for the Chicago Theatre.

Garrett Board Sends Out 270 Questionnaires

Three Young Men Will Report Monday for Final Examination

OAKLAND, Nov. 22. — Questionnaires will have been sent to about 270 young men by the end of the week, it was announced by H. P. Stuck, clerk in the office of the Selective Service board. It is planned to send out about twenty per cent or 475 at this time. The first group of fifty sent out last week have all been returned to the draft office for classification.

The three Garrett county boys who will report for duty November 23, at 6 a. m., will be John Disdon, Platt, Charles Henry Ogden and Gilbert Stuyvesant. They will be sent to the induction station of the United States Army at Baltimore.

In case one of the three above is not physically able, replacements will be John Ward Woods, William Ernest Griffith and Harvey Henry Crowe, in the order named.

Aliens Should Register

With the announcement of the government pointing out that alien registration will end on December 26, it was stated that sixty-five aliens had registered at the Oakland postoffice, according to Irvin R. Rudy, postmaster. It is estimated there are around 300 in the county.

None have registered the past weeks, and it was feared here that there would be a rush just during the busiest season of the year for the post office department, that of Christmas.

Final touches on the new federal post office building here are expected to be made within the next few days. Post office officials expected to be able to move into the new building, which is located on Second street, by the first of December.

Prior to the date of formal opening a dedication program will be presented when an official of the United States Post Office department will speak and possibly Representative W. D. Byron.

Board Makes Report

The annual financial report of the board of education was released yesterday showing receipts and expenditures for the entire school system of the county from August 1, 1939 to July 31, 1940.

Total receipts were $390,028.18. Of this amount $243,730.22 was from State and Federal funds; $6,272.48 Federal PWA funds; $97,234.48 from county school tax and $23,223.31 from other sources.

Disbursements for the year were $388,626.77. Of this amount $226,741.74 went into instructional service; capital outlay, $38,971.60; general control $12,613.43; operation of school plant, $14,774.26; auxiliary agencies, $77,566.29; maintenance, $15,431.28; debt service, $1,028.39; fixed charges, $1,399.76; leaving a balance on hand $1,401.41.

The report showed a total of 73 schools in the county and 163 teachers, the average daily attendance 4,369.39; and the average cost per pupil for one-teacher schools $51.57; two-teacher, $47.75; graded, $52.81; approved high schools $97.52; elementary and high schools $65.16.

Brief Items

The Oakland Rotary club observed Thanksgiving at its regular weekly meeting this evening. The program was shared with seven minute talks by Rev. A. B. Leamer and another member of the organization. The group had its picture taken after the meeting by the local photographer, James B. Bell. The club has a membership of 44.

Dr. H. R. DuPuy, country health officer, has been named chairman of the 1940 Christmas Seal Sale committee for this county, it has been announced.

Seals in this area will probably be mailed to individuals and business houses as in previous years.

Regular monthly clinics are held at the health office at Oakland and the next one scheduled is Wednesday morning, December 11, at 9 o'clock. Dr. Cadden, of the Hope-Memorial Sanitarium, will be in charge of examinations.

As the time draws near for the county commissioners to fix the levy for the year 1941, records at the office of Jesse J. Ashby, county treasurer, disclose that about thirty-seven per cent of the 1940 county taxes remains unpaid.

The treasurer's office has collected to date about 63 per cent of the taxes or $164,379.42, leaving a balance unpaid of $93,650.64. Collections are about the same as other years.

Interest has been charged since October 1 on delinquent taxes.

Sixty Frogs Die To Serve Justice Are Used To Test Drug In- volved in Court Case

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. (P)—Sixty little frogs gave their lives in federal court here so that justice might be served.

They were silent (except for a feeble croak or two), sacrificed witnesses for the government's case against the Yates Drug and Chemical Company, charged with shipping sub-standard digitals in violation of the Pure Food and Drug act.

Judge Vincent L. Leibel doffed his judicial robes, put a towel around his midriff, and stepped down to watch Dr. Lloyd C. Miller, senior pharmacologist of the food and drug administration, perform the rites of execution.

Each frog was weighed to the gram and labeled and then, at random, twenty were injected with standard digitals, twenty others with a half-strength solution, and the other twenty with what the government contended was the Yates product.

Scientists told the court that within an hour the hearts of frogs subjected to the full strength standard would stop, while those receiving the weaker solutions would continue to beat.

Judge Leibel checked the stopwatch as frog after frog went under Dr. Miller's knife and had its heart examined. Then Miller announced the score:

Government standard frogs—seventeen stopped, seven beating.

Half-government standard—three stopped, seventeen beating.

The alleged Yates product—four stopped, sixteen beating.

Miller then testified that the Yates product "has produced an effect equal to that produced by a half-dose of the government standard solution."

Defense attorneys said they would contend that the government frog test is obsolete and never certain.

West Virginians Are Inducted into Army under Draft Governor Holt Commends Group of Young Ameri- cans at Huntington

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 22. (P)—Governor Holt commended tonight a group of earnest young Americans who were inducted into the army earlier in the day by Fifth Corps Area officials.

The 118 men from West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky had been called in the Selective Service draft. Their physical examinations will continue tomorrow under the direction of Captain Roy Lewis, who headed the staff of thirty army officers here for the ceremony.

Three Huntington men, Wattle Workman, Fred McCoy and James Persinger, were the first of the group to take their oaths of allegiance.

"You're in the army now," Lewis told the young men. "You have taken on additional obligations and are subject not only to civil but also to military law."

Most disappointed of the lot was Richard Weaver, 33, of Charleston. He came here last night, determined to be the first inductee in line this morning. Army physicians looked at his teeth and rejected him quickly.

"I tried," said Weaver gloomily, "to get into the army before the draft but was turned down. I really thought I could make it this time."

Weaver and one other registrant who likewise was rejected had been passed before coming to Huntington due to a misunderstanding of the army regulations.

Holt spoke at the dinner honoring the men. Later, they were guests at a theatre.

The group came from Lawrence and Gallia counties, Ohio; Johnson and Boyd counties, Kentucky; and half a dozen counties in West Virginia. They will be taken to Fort Thomas, Ky., tomorrow.

Twelve Central High Students To Take Part in Declamation Contest

LONACONING, Nov. 22.—Twelve students of Central high school were judged to compete in the annual scholastic declamation contest to be held at the local school, Thursday, Dec. 5, it was announced today. The final contest will be held Friday, Dec. 13, throughout the county.

Girls selected are Mary Goodwin, Norma Gordon, Wilma Mackey, Doretha Reed, Geraldine Ross and Esther Siakem.

Boys chosen are Richard Dean, Harry Dixon, Jack Getty, Blair Holmes, Calvin James and William Moyer.

The Lowndes declamation contests are held each year throughout Allegany county, and Central high school lists the contest as a major event on the schedule of the Junior and Senior classes.

In previous contests at the school the students of each of the classes, from these a group of twenty are chosen to compete in the high school assembly. From this group the twelve have been selected. At the contest Thursday, Dec. 5, a boy and a girl will be selected, to represent the school in the county contests.

Central high school has won both the boy and girl prize on several occasions in past years.

Raised in Rank

Harrison McAlpine, a former resident of this place, and a graduate of Central high school in 1905, has recently been raised to the rank of Colonel in the United States Army.

It was learned here today.

Mr. McAlpine entered St. John's college after graduating from the local school, in 1909, with high honors. He then taught school in Georgia. In 1911, he returned to Central high to teach and after teaching three months he received a commission as Second Lieutenant in the army. In 1917 when the United States declared war on Germany he was commissioned as a Captain. After the war Mr. McAlpine saw service in the Army of Occupation in Germany.

He returned to the United States in 1921 and was commissioned a Major being stationed at Columbus, Ohio. After several years he was removed to Charleston, W. Va., and later was given charge of the CCC.

Movies To Be Shown

A puppet show, sponsored by the Potomac Edison company, will be presented Monday, Nov. 25, to students of four local schools.

In the morning the performance, known as "Captain Bob's Show," will be shown to the Central high school children, Jackson street, Rockville and Detmold schools will see the entertainment in the afternoon.

Mrs. Colleen Collett has charge of arrangements.

Ordnance Plant Will Be Re-conditioned At South Charleston

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 22. (P)—A section of the South Charleston Naval Ordnance plant built in 1917 for the manufacture of guns soon will be reconditioned and put back in operation, Captain R. Pfaff, inspector of ordnance in charge, announced today.

The North unit of the $22,000,000 plant, he said, will be used for machining guns up to six inches in caliber. The plant, when it is in operation, will receive castings from other places.

Both the remodeling and the machining of the guns will be done under a Navy department contract by the General Machinery Ordnance Corporation, a subsidiary of the General Machinery company of Hamilton, O. Capt. Pfaff said.

He said A. V. Weiland will arrive at South Charleston in about a week to serve as local manager for the corporation. Several hundred persons will be employed.

The North unit, directly across United States Route 60 from the main section of the naval ordnance plant, was erected and placed in operation during the World war.

President Roosevelt announced during an inspection visit here September 3 that the plant would be used in the manufacture of guns.

The Ohio firm will be the second to start operations in the plant under a navy contract. Other units have been leased for more than a year to the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation for heat treating of steel.

Barton Subscribes $100 to Red Cross

BARTON, Nov. 22.—First reports from the local Red Cross drive indicate that this community will subscribe its quota of $125. At present, $100 has been reported collected.

The drive is being conducted by Mrs. A. P. Hoffa, Roll Call chairman, assisted by Mrs. Mildred Kirkpatrick. The chairman announced that all organizations have responded generously which has contributed a great deal toward the high collection to date. Barton high school is 100 per cent as to teaching personnel, it was stated, and fifty Junior Red Cross memberships are reported from the children.

Members of the Barton chapter who are making collections are Mrs. Katherine Creutzberg, Mrs. Alex Cross, Miss Bessie Keyes, Mrs. Rachel Bradley, Miss Anna McLuckie, Miss Edith Creutzberg, Mrs. Lulu Boucher, Mrs. Jane McDonald, Mrs. Bessie MacDonald, Mrs. Bessie Gowan, Mrs. Katherine Gattens, James Timney and Mrs. Maude Yates.

Visit Store

The consumer economics class of the Barton high school were the guests of Sears, Roebuck and company, Wednesday, where Mr. Muddock, general manager and his assistant, Mr. Rankin, took them on a tour of the store in Cumberland. The detail of the system of retail selling and consumer values were explained by the managers.

In conclusion, they were shown two moving pictures, entitled "Retail Selling and Mail Order Buying" William P. Cooper, instructor, was in charge of the tour.

Attitudes Toward the Gospel Message

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 11-23

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson for Nov. 24 is Luke 8, the Golden Text being Luke 8:18, "Take heed therefore how ye hear.")
THE CHAPTER of St. Luke which comprises today's lesson is one of the most charming pictures of the life of our Lord on earth. It mentions three women who believed in the Lord and ministered to Him. Mary Magdalene had been cured of evil spirits by Him; Joanna was the wife of Chuza, steward or chamberlain of Herod Antipas, and Susanna, of her not mentioned anywhere else in the New Testament. All three were faithful followers who aided the Lord in His great work.
A great multitude was following Jesus, and He told them a parable of a sower who scattered grain. Some of the grains fell on to hard, barren ground, and almost at once birds flew down and ate them for food; others fell on stony ground that gave no moisture, and when the seeds came up they quickly withered. Still others fell in ground that allowed them to sprout and grow, but thorns grew also, and choked the good grain. Others fell into good ground and grew up and made a good harvest. As He told the parable He cried, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."
The disciples wanted to know the meaning of this parable, and Jesus explained that the seed was the word of God which was heard by many people. Some hearts were hard and the word made no impression on them. It was as if birds flew down and plucked the words and ate them. Others' hearts were stony, and while the good words might be sown in them, they soon were forgotten because the minds of those who received were not interested and gave them no thought in which to grow.
Others heard and believed at first, but allowed other interests, like weeds, to choke out all thought of them. But there were many whose minds and hearts welcomed the fruitful thoughts and cherished them, and gathered a rich harvest of fine Christian living from them.

Storm on Galilee
The Sea of Galilee is a beautiful body of water 350 feet below sea level. It is usually calm, but sudden storms arise on it. After teaching the people, Jesus and His disciples embarked in a boat to go to the other side of the sea. Jesus, being wearied, went to sleep, and a great storm arose, which rocked the boat and frightened the fishermen so that they called Jesus, telling Him that they

Frostburg Knights of Malta Have Impressive Ceremonies

Rowlesburg Girl Becomes Bride Of Hyndman Man

Florence Treutle and Victor Logsdon Wed in Cumberland Church

HYNDMAN, Pa., Nov. 22.—A wedding was solemnized at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening in the parsonage of the Central Methodist church, South George street, Cumberland, when Miss Florence Elaine Treutle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Treutle, of Rowlesburg, W. Va., became the bride of Victor Eugene Logsdon, of Hyndman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Logsdon, Schellburg street, Dr. A. H. Robinson, pastor of the church, officiated. The only attendants were Miss Dorothy Shahan, Cumberland, and Charles R. Mason, Pittsburgh, formerly a resident of Hyndman, and a boyhood chum of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a gown of blue chiffon velvet, with heart-shaped neck-line, and a shoulder corsage of red roses. The bride's attendant, Miss Shahan, wore a gown of black velvet and a shoulder corsage of red roses. The bride is a graduate of Rowlesburg high school, and Catherine's business college, and is employed in the office of the Celanese plant.

The bridegroom is an alumnus of the Hyndman high school, class of 1934, and works in the textile department of the Celanese corporation. A wedding dinner was given in honor of the couple at Betty's Blue Room, after which the couple left for an extended honeymoon to eastern cities. Upon their return they will be at home at 362 Williams street, Cumberland.

Married in Home

An impressive wedding occurred at 4:30 p. m. Thursday, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Grove, Potomac park, when their daughter, Miss Freda Gertrude Grove, became the bride of John Frederick Weber. The Rev. John H. Buffenmyer, of Hyndman, pastor of the Potomac Community church, performed the ring ceremony.

Their only attendants were Robert Shriver and Miss Mary Jane Keimhofer. Following the ceremony, the principals and guests enjoyed a wedding supper.

Among those present, in addition to those already named, were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Weber, Sr., parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Yoder and daughter, Mary Frances; Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Weybright; Hudson G. Weber; Mrs. Paul Keimhofer and daughter, Virginia Lee; Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Weber; Mrs. O. D. Graham and children, Harold and Donna Lee; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Weber and daughter, Leora.

Stores Remain Open

It appears that Hyndman, as a community, prefers to celebrate its annual Thanksgiving day the twenty-eighth this year. Only one place of business here was closed Thursday, the Hoblitzel National Bank. Even the postoffice remained open all day, as well as stores, offices in general, and all other places of business. The public school recess will occur next week (after Wednesday), the union Thanksgiving Service, and all other customary observations.

Bride Is Honored

Mrs. Walter Gaumer was hostess at a bridal shower Wednesday evening at her home on Clarence street, in honor of her niece, Mrs. Dale (Leckemby) Kipp, recent bride. Games, including bingo, made up the evening's entertainment. Dainty refreshments were served. Prizes were won as follows: First prize, Mrs. W. Evans; second prize, Mrs. Robert Bruner; third prize, Miss Dorothy Troutman. In addition to those already named, the following guests were present: Mrs. Percy Kipp, Miss Helen Jordan, Shirley Bruner, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Austin, Meyersdale, uncle and aunt of the bride. She and her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kipp, will occupy their parents' home (already furnished) on Clarence street, while the latter are spending the winter away.

Miss Kelley Entertains

Miss Norma Kelley was hostess at a 500 party at her home on Fourth avenue, Hollywood, Wednesday night. The players occupied three tables. Guests present were Mesdames J. C. Johnston, George Holler, Wilbert Shaffer, Homer Shaffer, Reuel Johnston, Ernest Harden, Leroy Johnston, Dorothy Johnston, Mrs. W. (Continued on Page 14, Col. 6)

Red Cross Roll Call Continues In Hardy County

Enrollments Will Be Accepted until Nov. 30; Workers Are Busy

MOOREFIELD, Nov. 22.—The Red Cross Roll Call in Hardy county is slightly ahead of last year according to the announcement of John T. St. Clair, chairman of the Hardy County Chapter. St. Clair also announced the organization of the workers for the county with Mrs. George Finley as county roll call chairman.

Assisting Mrs. Finley in the county districts are Mrs. H. Gus Munzing, chairman of the Moorefield area who is assisted by Mrs. Ted Sager, Mrs. Seymour Dasher, Mrs. Frederick Clarke, Mrs. Cleve Poole and Mrs. Carl Welton.

Mrs. Ward Wood is the chairman of the Lost City and Mathias area and her assistants are Mrs. Quent Evans, Mrs. Guy Ludwig, Mrs. Wilson Teets and Mrs. Sadie Halterman. Mrs. George Flowers is chairman at Lost River State Park and Camp Hardy CCC.

Mrs. Joseph T. Frye is chairman at Wardensville and Wardensville area and is assisted by Mrs. H. W. Rollings, Sr., and Stanley Hawse. Two more workers will be named later.

Enrollments will be accepted until November 30 when the drive formally closes. County Chairman St. Clair explained that the workers were authorized to accept any amount from twenty-five cents up in the Red Cross membership drive.

Huge Red Cross banners have been placed across the main street at the business section in Moorefield by the P. F. A. boys. Banners have been erected at Wardensville and at Lost City.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Hinkley have moved from Moorefield to Oakland where they will make their home. Private Charlie Dasher, who spent ten days here recovering from an appendectomy, left this week for Applefield, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson Currence arrived Wednesday night to spend the Thanksgiving holiday with Mrs. Currence's father, Dr. H. C. Baker. Albert Leatherman and Agnes Seymour took Mrs. Leatherman to Harrisonburg where she entered Rockingham Memorial hospital for treatment.

Electric Line Will Be Completed Soon

OAKLAND, Nov. 22.—Construction of 180 miles of REA lines is scheduled for completion before winter, and nearly 500 additional members will get electric service by February 1, weather permitting, according to Harvey S. Jennings, superintendent of the Somerset Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc., of Somerset, Pa.

Two Killed and Nine Injured In Truck Crash

Herman Evick and Boyd Warner Are Fatally Injured

FRANKLIN, W. Va., Nov. 22.—Herman Evick, Franklin, age about 40, and Boyd Warner, Circleville, age about 38, received fatal injuries from the result of a WPA truck wreck two miles south of Franklin, Friday evening.

The truck, returning with fourteen men, struck a bridge and overturned, and all but three of the fourteen men were injured. Mr. Evick died on the way to the Harrisonburg, Virginia, hospital and Mr. Warner died in the hospital later.

Four others were taken to the hospital also as follows: Jesse Thompson, Franklin, who formerly drove the mail truck between Petersburg and Franklin; Oliver Hedrick, Ruddle; Elijah Smith, Ruddle and Charles Hedrick, Ruddle.

Corporal Bush of the state police investigated the accident and a hearing will be held in the case Monday, November 24. Prosecuting Attorney K. C. VanMeter, Jr., Petersburg, will also assist with the investigation.

Church Group To Present Varied Musical Program

Thirty-five boys and girls from Petersburg and Moorefield will take part in a musical program arranged by Mrs. L. R. Grover, which will be given in the local Presbyterian church Saturday night, November 23, at eight p. m.

This program is under the auspices of Circle No. 3 of the Presbyterian Auxiliary and the ladies will serve light refreshments after the entertainment. The program will be in four parts and is varied and interesting. The introductory section will be given by young men.

Miss Margaret Moomau has been assigned the piano solo before the second section, which will be entirely ensemble work. Miss Mollie Pownall will be the piano soloist before the musical play "Cinderella", which will be attractively staged and costumed. Miss Diana Moomau has charge of the offertory number, and Miss Joan Taylor will give the piano solo before the concluding feature, "A Carnival of the Music of All Nations", which also will be given in costume.

Petersburg young people who will take part in the program include Cary Breathed, Sallie Moomau, Margaret Moomau, Dianna Moomau, Joan Taylor, Juanita Borrer, Vista Rensenhaver, Helen Layton, Hazel Haselacker, Rosalie Browne, Mary Elizabeth Shobe and Mary Ellen Shobe. A silver offering will be taken for the benefit of Circle No. 3.

Mrs. Rosie L. Thorn Dies

Word was received here yesterday by Mrs. Nina Feaster that her sister, Mrs. Rosie Lee Thorn, wife of John T. Thorn, Martin, W. Va., died Tuesday night at the Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, where she had undergone an operation Monday.

She is survived by her husband and three small children, John, Jr., Pauline and Charlotte Thorn, Jr., two sisters, Mrs. Nina Feaster, Petersburg, and Mrs. Bessie Gillespie, Romney; five brothers, Emory Davis, Keyser; Earl Davis, Franklin; and Arnold, Odell and Wilbur Davis, Mayville; and her parents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis, Marsville. Mrs. Thorn formerly lived near here before marriage.

Pipe Line To Be Built

P. R. Hinkle, consulting engineer, of Parsons, met with the town council Wednesday evening to make plans for the water line to be constructed under the bed of the Potomac river to supply citizens of South Petersburg with water.

South Petersburg is now receiving water through a temporary one and one-half inch pipe which was erected after the old water line went down with the crash of the bridge early in October.

Mr. Hinkle will have the plans ready in the next few days for the project which will cost $5,000. The new line will be constructed of cast iron pipe of six inch diameter that has been approved by the state department of health.

The work will be done as a WPA project and the town of Petersburg will furnish approximately twenty-five percent of the funds while the WPA will furnish the labor and rest of the cost. Work will be started on the project in the next two weeks.

Marriage Announced

Genevieve Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lewis, Petersburg, and Victor Keplinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Keplinger, Mayville, were married Tuesday evening by the Rev. P. I. Garber, at the parish house.

Miss Carrie Lyons Dies in Hospital At Keyser, W. Va.

Crippled Basket Weaver, Elk Garden Succumbs after Long Illness

KEYSER, W. Va., Nov. 22.—Miss Carrie Lyons, 37, Elk Garden's crippled basket weaver, died at Potomac Valley hospital here Wednesday night.

"Miss Carrie," subject of many magazine and newspaper articles, was brought to the hospital here last week after suffering a heart attack.

A victim of spinal arthritis, for many years she lay on her back in bed, unable to move any part of her body but her arms and hands. With the aid of a mirror placed above the bed in her mountain home, she wove baskets and wickerwork of what has been described as unusually fine workmanship.

Young People Meet

Sixty-five were present at the annual Thanksgiving banquet of the Young People's Department of Grace Methodist church here this evening.

The dining room of the church, where the banquet was served, had as the centerpiece of the decorations the scene of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock.

Included on the program were piano solos by Miss Homan, trumpet solos by Walter Frederick, and extemporaneous speeches following the dinner.

Yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, the Otterbein Guild of Calvary United Brethren church met at the church for its annual Thanksgiving breakfast and service. Miss Cecile Breeland was leader of a program based on "Thanksgiving and Peace."

Eighteen were present, including the Rev. R. L. Brill, pastor of the church, and Mrs. Brill.

Chaney Held in Jail

Ralph Chaney, 30-year-old Hampshire county orchard worker, was in the Mineral county jail here today, awaiting transfer to the West Virginia state penitentiary at Moundsville, where he was sentenced to a life term Wednesday by a Hampshire county judge for the slaying of Sheriff Newton B. Guthrie last month.

County authorities here said that no indications of violence had been observed in Romney, county seat and site of the county jail, but Chaney was brought here Wednesday afternoon by state police as a precautionary measure.

Mineral county sheriff Harley O. Stagers said this evening that Chaney would not be taken immediately to Moundsville. He will await one of the penitentiary buses, which make periodic rounds through different sections of West Virginia, picking up state prisoners.

3 Members Get Certificates for 50-Year Service

"Sixth Degree" Is Conferred upon Class of Seven Candidates

FROSTBURG, Md., Nov. 22.—Making one of the best years from the standpoint of membership growth in the history of Victory Commandery, No. 4, Knights of Malta, the commandery held a Thanksgiving meeting last evening and conferred the "Sixth Degree" upon a class of seven candidates.

In addition to the class initiation, three of the commandery's oldest members, E. B. Prichard, James Stewart and Louis Connors, were presented with fifty year certificates, the presentation ceremony being in charge of Van Beeman, the present head of the local commandery. The members receiving certificates have been active for a half century and still attend meetings regularly and during recent years assisted the younger maltais in securing new members.

The Thanksgiving meeting was attended by nearly one-hundred members of the order. Addresses were delivered by District Deputy Kingsing and Ralph Walton, Cumberland; District Deputy Siler, Berlin, Pa., and Secretary Holshu, of the Meyersdale, Pa. commandery.

Officers of the local commandery who have charge of the ceremony of initiation were Van Beeman, commander; Robert Crump, generalissimo; William J. Adams, captain general; E. B. Prichard, prelate; David T. Adams, acting recorder; Samuel Smith, treasurer; George Luckie, senior warden; Thomas Williams, junior warden; Ralph Taylor, standard bearer; John Timmons, sword bearer; Harry J. Adams, warden; Clarence Reppann, sentinel; Harry Ebel, first guard and Donald Jeffries, second guard.

Victory Commandery has the distinction of being the oldest active Malta group in the United States. The men who established the order here March, 26, 1885 as charter members were Robert Willson, E. W. Drew, Alfred Morgan, Lincoln Earne, Alec S. Williams, Thomas M. Wilson, George W. Myers, James M. Wilson, George W. Hosken, Samuel Logsdon.

Enoch Logsdon, Richard Morgan, E. B. Prichard, E. H. B. Prichard, Alexander Smythe, Joseph and James Morris, John Henry, Samuel Armstrong, Joseph H. Whelstone, John M. Smith, D. K. Smith, Gershon Anthony, Owen England, Thomas Bath, James Stewart, John Close, William Powell, Jethro Jeffries, Salem Humbertson and George Armstrong.

Professor Diehl Is Author of Treatise

Professor Ivan C. Diehl, head of the geography department at the State Teachers College, Frostburg, is author of an article entitled, "A Problem Plan for Organizing a Teaching Unit in Geography," which appears in the current November issue of the Journal of Geography, official organ of the National Council of Geography Teachers. This article should be of interest to all teachers of geography in elementary, junior high, and senior high schools as well as to non-specialized teachers in elementary schools.

Recently Professor Diehl received a request from the editor of the Journal of Geography to submit several units of work for publication in the Journal between January and July. Professor Diehl's "Method of Procedure for an ES-Course" appeared in the February, 1940 issue of the same magazine.

Since 1932 Professor Diehl has been the Maryland director for the National Council of Geography Teachers. His first official act was the founding of the Geography Section of the Maryland State Teachers' Association the chief purpose of which is to further the development of a knowledge of geography and geography teaching in the public school system of the state.

Professor Diehl has received numerous letters from various parts of the country complimenting him on his contributions to the field of educational geography.

Walter Engle Succumbs

Power Driven Sewing Machine Will Be Illustrated at Meyersdale

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Nov. 22 — Arrangements have been made to use the facilities of the Meyersdale Manufacturing Co., Inc., in giving instruction in power driven sewing machine operation, and next Monday evening a class of girls and women will start on this course of free instruction under the supervision of John Layton.

The course is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction under a recent act of assembly which provides for the training of adult women to enable them to enter employment.

Girls must be sixteen years old, or over, in order to be eligible for this course, and young women, married or single, are invited to enroll. Classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 4:30 to 6 o'clock and Saturday mornings from 8 to 12 o'clock. The local shirt factory has all necessary equipment for the various kinds of sewing.

Directors Chosen

At a meeting Wednesday evening of the stockholders of the Somerset County Fair Association the following were chosen directors of the promotion of the 1941 fair and races: Dr. J. W. Wenzel, Edison M. Hay, Melvin Geisbert, Nat. Friedline, Dr. William P. Cover, Cyrus M. Bird, Lloyd D. Peck, S. S. Rickard, Harry T. Habel, J. E. Leckemby, Harry T. Staub, William Dahl, Harry Meyers, W. A. Allshouse, and Clarence P. Rowe. Former directors, D. Guy Floto, Charles E. Bird and Frank P. Brown, were retired from the board at their own request.

The board of directors will meet next Friday evening to choose the officers for the coming year. The person chosen president will have the privilege of naming four additional directors.

To Play in Orchestra

Four young musicians of the local high school orchestra, Catherine Wagner, Georgiana Di Valentino and John Leslie, violins, and Mary Jane Critchfield, flute, have been chosen to play in the All-Western Pennsylvania Orchestra Festival which opened for a three-day meet yesterday in Jeannette. The young musicians were accompanied by Prof. George Pfingner, who will conduct one of the festival numbers.

Last year Meyersdale played host to the all-western musical organization, entertaining in its homes 150 young musicians who represented the best musical talent of the high schools of western Pennsylvania, and which proved the greatest musical event in the history of the Meyersdale community. Some of the concerts will be broadcast over the state network.

Dr. Hoke Is Honored

At the autumn meeting of the Somerset County Medical Society, held at nearby Hollywood Inn Tuesday evening, Dr. Bradley H. Hoke, Salisbury, was chosen president, succeeding Dr. F. W. White, Rockwood. The organization was completed by the election of Dr. M. S. Cargill, Somerset, vice-president; Dr. J. R. Hemminger, Somerset, treasurer, and Dr. Bradley H. Hoke, Sr., Meyersdale, secretary.

The same evening the members of the society and the women's auxiliary were guests at a turkey dinner and listened to an interesting and instructive address on "Fingerprinting" by David W. Drenning, fingerprint expert for Troop A of the state motor police, stationed at Greensburg. The two groups were also entertained with a sound movie entitled "With These Weapons," showing the state-wide drive being made against social diseases.

Plan Road Opening

Yesterday afternoon a group of Johnstown businessmen, representing the chamber of commerce, fire department and other civic organizations, were in Meyersdale to extend an invitation to the citizens of this community to participate in a road opening celebration in Johnstown Friday, November 29.

The formal opening of Bedford street, Route 56, will be celebrated with a parade, ribbon-cutting ceremony at 11 a. m. and a banquet at 6:30 p. m., in the Fort Stanwix hotel.

Among the members of the party were John A. Conway, mayor of Johnstown, and councilmen Fred S. Brosius and Clyde Snook; W. H. Patterson, president of the Johnstown commerce body; James Foster, president of the Johnstown board of merchants; W. C. Mulhollen,

Large Bass Caught in West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 22 (AP)—Predictions of the Conservation commission last spring that there would be bigger Bass caught in 1940 than in several years proved true today with only eight days remaining in the legal season.

The general catch in state streams this year has been about average, the commission said, but during the five-month season, more large Bass—weighing three pounds or over—had been caught.

The largest reported to date to the commission was an eight-pound large mouth taken out of the Little Kanawha river.

Technicians employed by the commission are checking report cards filled out by anglers on test sections of the Elk, Greenbrier, Cacapon and South Fork of the Potomac rivers, to tabulate the fishermen's returns and conditions in those major Bass streams.

The season on Muskellunge and Wall-Eyed Pike will continue until April 14.

C. P. Metzner Dies

Football Nears End of Schedule Today

Grid Headliners Turn Attention From Minnesota

Gophers Favored To Top Wisconsin in Final of Season

Cornell-Penn and Irish-Northwestern Tilts Attract Fans

By BILL BONI

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22 (AP)—Minnesota, No. 1 football team in the country, comes to the end of a back-breaking schedule tomorrow and, by all local means of reckoning, should get there with its back neither broken by defeat nor deuced by a tie.

While the Gophers are taking on underdog Wisconsin at Madison they will have to look elsewhere for their headline from Cornell hoping to rebound from the Dartmouth upset, and Penn will draw better than 78,000 here at Franklin Field; some 72,000 are due to see Michigan and Ohio State war at Columbus, and 48,000, all they can get in the place, will be at Northwestern's Dyche Stadium as the Wildcats square off against Notre Dame.

How They Shape Up

As the season nears its close, with the Big Nine, the Big Three and other major teams closing out their campaigns, this is how tomorrow's major games look from here (home games first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Penn-Cornell (78,000)—18 of the 22 Cornell first and second stringers will be playing their last game, and we miss our guess if they don't take the field with blood (figuratively) in their eyes. The Ithacans won last year, and if their best is better this year, Cornell.

Wisconsin-Minnesota (40,000)—The Badgers knocked a surprise in the decisiveness of their victory over Indiana. But this is a different proposition, Minnesota.

Mississippi State-Mississippi (24,000)—State has at least one fine back in Billy Jefferson, Ole Miss at least two in Junie Hovius and Merle Hapes. Mississippi.

Northwestern-Notre Dame (48,000)—Northwestern.

Yale-Harvard (45,000)—Tradition alone can't pack to Elfin' bowl any more. Still, it should be a real dog-fight, with this nod to Harvard.

Tennessee-Kentucky (25,000)—Even if Kaintuck hadn't been dumped so unceremoniously by West Virginia, Tennessee would have to be the pick.

Dartmouth on Lift

Baylor-Southern Methodist (15,000)—On form S.M.U. looks too good.

U.C.L.A.-Washington (40,000)—Washington.

Nebraska-Iowa State (25,000)—Another for the Huskers.

Ohio State-Michigan (72,000)—Michigan to finish second in the Western Conference by taking this one.

Boston College-Auburn (30,000)—The Eagles can't afford to take this lightly, but should win.

Brown-Dartmouth (15,000)—Dartmouth, off the last it got from Cornell game.

Alabama-Vanderbilt (15,000)—Alabama.

Pitt-Penn State (25,000)—Stringing with unbeaten Penn State.

Georgetown-George Washington (14,000)—Georgetown, barring a complete letdown from the R.C. boys.

Furman-Clemson (15,000)—Clemson, but hold your hats.

Purdue-Indiana (31,000)—Completely in the dark.

Iowa-Illinois (20,000)—Look like a sad windup for the Illini.

Columbia-Colgate (20,000)—A stout line for Columbia.

Georgia Tech-Florida (20,000)—A flir on Florida.

Michigan State-West Virginia (18,000)—The home team, State.

Princeton-Army (20,000)—Princeton.

Here 'n' there elsewhere:

Holy Cross to overpower Manhattan, Lafayette to breeze past Lehigh, Duquesne to shade Villanova.

North Carolina over Virginia, Duke over N. C. State, Tulane over Louisiana Normal.

D. & E. Tops Salem For First Victory

Elkins, W. Va., Nov. 22 (AP)—A small homecoming crowd of 800 saw Davis-Elkins capitalize on a fumble and an intercepted pass to defeat Salem College 13-0 yesterday and gain their first football victory of the season.

Symons set up the first score in the second period when he recovered a Salem fumble on the visitors' 35 yard line. On the second play Right Halfback Goodman scored on an end run, and Celio booted the extra point.

Both teams went scoreless until the final quarter when Goodman intercepted a Salem pass on the latter's 30 and carried the ball to the 14 from where two plays later Simpson lateraled to Harper for Davis-Elkins second touchdown.

Davis-Elkins reeled off 16 first downs while holding their opponents to six.

DAVIS FINED $2,500 FOR FOULING

SPORTS TRAIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—There are thousands of football games played every fall in which the officials are just as much broad-gauged as the players. Some are huffing and puffing and tooting and causing little comment unless they seem to have one-track feet which always are stepping off yards against the home team.

Then something comes up like the Red Friesell fifth-down incident in the Cornell-Dartmouth game and these anonymous spooks flitting around out there trying to make order out of chaos immediately become not only personalities, but of fustian bunnies who have taken the game right out of the boys' hands.

This idea of making the whole class stay after school because one boy inadvertently tripped the teacher seems all wrong. Sure, they make mistakes—honest mistakes—but we're still looking for the guy, who never made a mistake in making change for a dollar.

As a class, football officials rate right up with any group of men in intelligence, honesty, courage and ability. They probably have the toughest job of sports officiating—trying to see that 22 big hoosiers barging into each other are doing so according to rules. It's a pretty safe bet that on every play there is a bit of holding or elbow nudging or some other illegal hocus-pocus.

That the officials do as well as they do is the wonder of it. Particularly when the rules are taken into consideration. It takes an auditor to add them all up and get the right answer.

It was Ernie Quigley who, in explaining the perennial status of baseball as the national game, pointed out that the baseball fathers leave the rules alone, and a person seeing his first game in 10 years would recognize it as the game he last saw.

The football rules body meets every year, and if it doesn't add or revise three or four rules in a book that already has more sections and articles and by-products than the criminal code it has wasted its time.

Oddly enough, the errors which bring officials into the spotlight usually aren't due to misinterpretation, but to judgment. Friesell knew there should only be four downs. His error was in memory, and perhaps in the memory of the rest of the league.

McLennan Preps Hialeah Program

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—Word from Florida is to the effect that Charles J. McLennan, who keeps busy serving six different tracks as racing secretary and handicapper, has opened his winter headquarters at Hialeah Park and started checking nominations to the four stake races which closed last week.

"Although I have not had time to more than glance over the lists, the indications are that Hialeah will have considerable quality and quantity this season," he observed. "The ($50,000) Widener looms up in splendid fashion with Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech already on the grounds."

Charles M. Feltner sold Royal Business to Capt. Ewart Johnson at private terms. The Virginian will include his purchase in the string that Trainer O. F. (Red) Kent will campaign at the 18-day meeting at Charles Town, West Virginia.

Suspension Jockey Willie Garner was suspended for the remainder of the Bowie meeting and fined $200 by the stewards yesterday for grabbing and holding the saddle cloth of the filly, Swynston, at the half-mile pole in the first race.

Rival Catholic College Elevens To Clash Sunday

Two Cumberland Boys in Game at Cresson, Pa., Tomorrow

LORETTTO, Nov. 22.—St. Francis college's Red Flash gridder will be sent through their final practice session of the season tomorrow and will get a good rest after that in preparation for the grid classic of the season, against St. Vincent's Bearcats, Sunday afternoon at Cresson.

The Red Flash mentor, Jim Leonard, received a bit of good news today when Henry Pascavage, brilliant left tackle, reported for drills and was all set to go against the Bearcats. The return of the veteran 195 pound tackle will bolster the local line considerably although Moon Andrews, gigantic 225 pound tackle, will be definitely out of the fray.

Saturday's session will be devoted entirely to warming up exercises and a short review of the plays. The team will be guests at a bonfire and rally dance as part of the St. Francis college homecoming celebration, and will retire at 10 p.m.

Coach Leonard refused to make any predictions on the outcome of the game, but said that his charges would be ready to give the Bearcats as tough a ball game as they had all season.

"The boys really want this ball game," said Leonard, "and we'll have a real ball club on the field. We're out to win, and will open up with everything in the books if necessary."

Cumberland Boys in Game

The St. Francis players are a bit more specific. To a man they agree that there can be one winner, and they are determined to walk off the gridiron claiming the victory.

Coach Leonard announced his line-up today and will have six juniors and five sophomores anchoring the starting whistle. Charlie Burke of Philadelphia and Andy Poppinback of Monongahela at the end berths, with Phil Carlson of Cumberland, Md., and Henry Pascavage of Frackville playing beside them at the tackle spots.

In the center of the line, Eddie Meehan of Mount Carmel and Frank Keefe of Gilbert will be at the guards with Vince Metek in between them at the center berth. Metek, like Meehan, is a Mount Carmel product.

Pony Backfield

Coach Gene Edwards of St. Vincent's Bearcats announced that he would send Joe Loncaric and Patsy Phillips into the battle at the wing positions; Larry DeOde and Bob Wickman at the tackle berths; Mike Tutokle and Steve Vucic at guard; and Al Nichols at center.

In the Bearcat backfield, Dick Detzel, Erie Speedster, will combine the running duties with Mike Polack of Farmington, W. Va., at the halfback position; Bob Morgillo at quarterback; and Frank Porys, Morgantown, W. Va., star, at the fullback position.

St. Francis, in starting their pony backfield which averages only 157 pounds, will be spotting the Bearcats a large weight advantage, but the swift Lorettoans expect the lightweight in the backfield to cause plenty of stir behind their heavy line.

Milan Gjuriich, St. Francis' sensational left halfback—a triple threat if there ever was one—will enter the game in the second quarter as in the usual procedure of Coach Leonard, in using the former Conemaugh high school power-runner.

St. Vincent will rule a slight favorite over the locals, due mainly to the fact that the Red Flash will enter the game with six key performers definitely out of this week's action. However, St. Francis backers are plentiful and the game is not expected to be the walk-away that it was looked upon early in the season.

Detroit Rookie Hurler Denies He's Polish Pilot

BECKLEY, W. Va., Nov. 22 (AP)—Join Gorsica, Detroit rookie baseball pitcher, wants it known that he is not an airplane pilot and that he is not planning to enlist with the Polish foreign legion aiding in the defense of the British Isles.

The story, he said, first was bruited around in Detroit and then reached Bayonne, N. J., the home of his parents. Anxious, they queried him about it.

"I'm going home in the next few days to see my parents and try to find out how the story got started," said Gorsica. "All I've been doing since the world series ended is to put a coat of paint around my place here."

Gorsica lives here with his wife and young daughter.

Canadian's Long Shot Winners in Bowie's Feature

Second Helping and Sir Marlboro Entered In Handicap

BOWIE, Nov. 22.—On closing day at Pimlico, Second Helping surprised the form players by winning the $10,000-added Bowie Handicap and on opening day here Sir Marlboro upset the calculations when he galloped home in the $5,000-added Lynch Memorial Handicap.

Both long shots perform under the silks of the popular Canadian sportsman Conn Smythe and are scheduled to go postward tomorrow in the $5,000-added Prince George Autumn Handicap, the feature offering of the week-end program.

Expects Field of Ten

Racing Secretary John B. Campbell believes 10 distance runners will be named overnight to compete in the mile-and-a-sixteenth test and if the bettors place their wagers according to revised figures, the Smythe entry will be favored.

However, Campbell does not expect a galloping winner in the Autumn Handicap. "Remember the sensational dead heat turned in by Honey Cloud and Conquer in the 1938 running?" he said, "well, don't be surprised if the eighteenth running of the event furnishes a finish almost as close."

List of Winners

The Prince George Autumn Handicap, since its inaugural 1923, has been won by many sterling horses. The list of past winners includes Donaghoe, Prince of Bourbon, Bully, Jock, Nassau, Cannon, Murray Book and Chaneyville. Honey Cloud was nominated for tomorrow's event, but has been retired for the year.

Sun Beau, leading money winning thoroughbred of the world until his record was broken by Sea-biscuit this year, finished second in the 1938 running.

In addition to the Smythe entry, the following distance runners are expected to run in the Prince George "Cap" Belair Stud's Ducky Fox, James Emery's Dolly Val, Mrs. D. K. Kerr's True Call, Mrs. E. G. Lewis' Pagliacci, C. V. Whitney's Parang, J. E. Widener's Roman and George D. Widener's Rosetown and Birch Rod.

True Call's Disappoints

True Call's disappointed followers in her last race, but it is pertinent to note she turned in two splendid races this fall. At Laurel, she was the winner of the Maryland Handicap and, at Pimlico the Kerr run-

Mountaineers at Michigan State

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 22 (AP)—Michigan State closes its football season against West Virginia here tomorrow, and the Spartans' chief inspiration will be to keep the home state clean. State has lost four games in the poorest of recent seasons under Coach Charley Bachman, but none of the defeats was suffered at home.

The Probable Lineups

Referee Richard E. Remington, Michigan umpire Paul O. Goulet, Michigan coaches James F. Fergus, Chicago judge Forrest Strome, Kalamazoo time of game 2 P. M. (EST).

Notre Dame "Cleans Up"

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 22 (AP)—Notre Dame's football team may be beaten on the field, but it's still cleaning up at the ticket windows.

The Irish already have played before 365,000 fans in seven games and expect to pass the half-million mark in the two contests remaining before the close of their campaign.

The 50,000 capacity of Northwestern's Dyche Stadium was exhausted three weeks ago for tomorrow's tussle while the advance sale for the Southern California game has been bigger than it was two years ago, when 104,500 spectators set a Pacific Coast attendance record.

Allegheny County's NYA Quota Is Doubled under National Defense Setup

Employment Increased from 600 to 1,200; Garrett County Is Boosted from 100 to 300

Employment on National Youth Administration projects in Allegheny county is being increased one hundred per cent as a result of additional money made available for projects on work experience along the lines of national defense, it was announced last evening by E. Price Steiding, of Lonaconing, assistant area director.

At the same time Steiding stated that NYA employment in Garrett county will be boosted 200 per cent above its present mark under the new setup.

Local Quota Doubled
Approximately 600 youths are now employed in Allegheny county at the present time, Steiding said, and this figure will be increased to the 1,200 mark under new limitations. In Garrett county the employment figures will be increased from 100 to 300 youths.

Under the expansion program any unemployed youth in Allegheny or Garrett county is eligible to apply for employment regardless of his or her financial status. With the relief feature entirely eliminated Steiding indicated that hundreds of youths between the ages of 17 and 25 years of age will flock to the three NYA offices in the two counties seeking employment.

Those interested are requested to apply in person to NYA offices in the Cumberland street school building, 73 East Main street, Lonaconing, or at the office in the rear of Oakland high school.

Many Changes Planned
The NYA now has in operation machine and sheet metal shops and is planning to start up a radio shop in a short wave broadcasting unit. The auto mechanics shop in Lonaconing will be expanded and a power sewing machine will be installed at the Cumberland street school for the sewing of clothing of various types.

NYA was forced to curtail its program late in August and as a result many youths were laid off. However, under the new program eight hundred will be given employment in Garrett and Allegheny counties.

Ryland Is Named To National Unit Becomes Member of Life Insurance Information Committee

Appointment of W. Ambrose Ryland, of 206 Bedford street, as a member of the Life Insurance Information committee of the National Association of Life Underwriters, was announced yesterday by Harry T. Wright, of Chicago, president.

Ryland, local agent for the Bankers' Life Company, is president of the Cumberland Life Underwriters' Association, which comprises seventy-eight managers, assistants and agents of sixteen insurance companies in this territory.

As head of the local association Ryland has played a prominent part in helping to disseminate sound information regarding the institution of life insurance through his cooperation with John B. Gontrom, state insurance commissioner and Calvert F. Stein, actuary of the state insurance department, who has paid eight visits to Cumberland and interviewed approximately 200 persons regarding insurance problems.

Associations similar to the local unit are located in 364 cities in this country. Sixteen companies in the local association are Bankers, Aetna, Travelers, New York Life, Mutual Life of New York, Metropolitan, Prudential, New England Mutual, Penn Mutual, Monumental, Equitable of New York, Equitable of the District of Columbia, Peoples' Life, Star Life, Monarch and Eureka.

The Life Insurance Information committee, of which Ryland is a member, is composed of twelve men from all sections of the country. Herbert A. Hedges, of Kansas City, Mo., is general chairman, and Ralph Engleman, of New York, is vice-chairman.

Hunters Blamed For Seven Fires In This County

District Forester Warns of Stiff Penalties for Those Apprehended

Seven fires of incendiary origin have been set in the woods of Allegheny county in the past week by hunters in an effort to "smoke out" game in trees, said H. C. Buckingham, district forester yesterday.

One of the fires on Port Hill, near Rawlings, destroyed twenty acres of woodland while another on Butcher's run, on the west side of Dan's mountain, burned over one acre and ten acres were burned on Potomac Hill near Lonaconing.

Other fires were discovered on Maple run, near Oldtown; on the west side of Green Ridge mountain; one in the Williams road section, on Savage mountain, near Barton; and one on Piney mountain.

Mr. Buckingham said there was no doubt the fires were set by hunters as in every case the flames were found smoldering in the hollow trees.

"I was under the impression hunters were interested in getting fresh and not smoked meat," Mr. Buckingham added.

Urnier Wiegand, district fire warden, and his deputies are sorely taxed to cope with the vicious outbreaks of fires thus set and in the event any of the culprits are apprehended they will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

In case any hunter is unaware of the penalties for these offenses it was remarked by Mr. Wiegand that for setting any fire in the woods without a forest department permit the fine is from $25 to $2,000 or thirty days to five years in jail.

In addition to that penalty the laws of the conservation department are very strict as to illegal methods of hunting game and stiff fines are the case.

The fires are not the work of any one person as they are widely scattered about the county and this fact has caused the authorities much concern.

Nineteen Cited For Awards at Court of Honor Event Is Scheduled for Tuesday, November 26 at the Library

Nineteen boys of six local troops will receive awards at the Cumberland District Court of Honor, Boy Scouts of America, scheduled for Tuesday, November 26, at the Cumberland Public Library, Washington street, it was announced yesterday at local scout headquarters.

The ceremonies will start at 7:30 p. m. and will be in charge of Dr. Leslie E. Daugherty.

Boys approved for the various awards by the court of review, include:

Second class awards—Forrest Karr, Troop 4; Paul Thrasher, Troop 2; William Mosner, Alvin Paul, Joseph Becker, Robert Curry, Donald Hoyle, Fred Burke, John Steiner, Charles Steiner, Francis Browning and John Mellon.

Lloyd Shumaker, 29, of Fairhope, Pa., suffered a badly mangled right hand Thursday morning when his shotgun accidentally discharged while he was hunting.

Replacement of Sleeping Car Is Assured by B. & O.

Will Be Replaced for Ninety Days To Determine Whether Service Will Pay

Replacement of the Cumberland sleeping car from New York to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is assured for the next three months. Action by chamber of commerce directors at their monthly meeting last night made this possible.

The railroad company offered to replace the sleeping car for a ninety-day period to determine whether this service would pay. The offer was contingent upon a recommendation from the chamber and its members. That recommendation was given last night by the directors on behalf of the membership.

Survey Is Made
The proposal had been in the hands of a special committee of the chamber comprising Edward F. Hanlon, traffic manager at the Celanese plant; Leo Ley, traffic manager at the Kelly-Springfield plant; and Harold W. Smith, chamber secretary. A survey conducted by the committee that the overnight service would be sufficiently patronized.

The directors also recommended to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad that it reroute passenger train No. 4 through Cumberland instead of by the Patterson creek cut-off. The railroad has had this change under consideration.

Directors were apprised that the Civilian Pilot Training school sponsored by the chamber under federal supervision would most likely be under way by the first of December.

Secretary Smith announced that vacancies still exist for enrollments. Application blanks have been issued to 130 and thirty-three young persons have actually made the deposit covering medical fees and textbooks for the competitive course, while five have enrolled as non-competitive students. Vacancies are open in both classes, Smith said.

Five Members Added
Five new members were added by election, upon recommendation of the membership committee, these being Rannels Air Service, Inc.; C. A. Murray, Cal McIntyre, Independent Motor Fuel Supply Company and Charles Z. Heskett.

She will be returned home today.

Warrants Are Sworn Out for Those Involved in Egg-Throwing Incident

Police To Round Up Those Responsible for Disorder after Grid Game

Police last night announced that warrants have been sworn out for the arrest of students or graduates of Allegheny high school who were involved in the egg-throwing incidents Thursday afternoon after the Allegheny-Fort Hill annual football game which drew a crowd of approximately 6,000 fans to the Fort Hill stadium.

Four warrants have already been secured and several more are expected to be obtained later, they said. The students responsible will be taken before their principal or to juvenile court and the graduates, if any, will have to stand trial in police or trial magistrates' court.

Tomatoes Are Thrown
Police also added that tomatoes were thrown at members of the Fort Hill Pep Club while they paraded on Baltimore street Wednesday night.

Members of the Fort Hill band said eggs thrown at them while they were marching on Baltimore street after the game were tossed by persons wearing Allegheny high school sweaters and letters.

Three of the eggs reportedly struck the American flag and caused some damage. About sixteen Fort Hill uniforms, including the drum major's and majorettes' were stained.

Police said most of the trouble occurred at Baltimore and Liberty street. They were quick to add that the decorations put up by Fort Hill students at Williams street, near Maryland avenue, caused much dissension.

Blames Former Students
One Allegheny student remarked yesterday that if any egg-throwing was done it was done by former students and not by members of this year's student body, as most owners of athletic letters are members of the football squad and they were nowhere near the scene of the egg-tossing.

Officers were overworked to untangle traffic on downtown streets and quell disorders at the game and afterwards. However, they received the praise of both schools for handling the situation as well as they did.

Before the game, the blue and white clad Allegheny band and the scarlet and white uniformed Fort Hill band massed to march onto the field in a patriotic setting, playing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Between the halves, the bands performed individually, Fort Hill putting on the longest exhibition. Fort Hill won, 20-0.

Newhouse Death Shows Evidence Of Foul Play

Luther Borrer Is Held for Questioning following Finding of Body

County authorities investigating the death of Lyle Newhouse, a Celanese worker, 24, of Keyser, W. Va., said last night that there were no new developments in the case which they declared showed "every evidence of foul play."

Newhouse's body was found Wednesday night in a ditch between the Western Maryland railway tracks and the McCool-Westernport road. He was last seen alive about 6 p. m. Wednesday night in the company of Luther Borrer, also a Celanese worker, of Keyser, W. Va., in Piedmont, W. Va.

Appeal for Aid
State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle have appealed for aid in tracing the movements of Newhouse after 6 p. m. Wednesday, and ask that any person who saw him between 6 and 9 p. m. to communicate with the authorities.

The victim's body was found by Ray Newhouse, his brother, who was driving with Paul Johnson, of Keyser. They were returning from Westernport when Johnson saw the body in the ditch. "There's a dead man," Johnson remarked as the car stopped.

Johnson walked over to the body with a flashlight while Newhouse remained near the car. Johnson could not detect any sign of life in the body. They returned to Westernport and reported to Constable Florian Wilson that a man "either dead or drunk" was lying along the road. Johnson said the officer did not seem willing to go and investigate, so he drove to Keyser and reported to the West Virginia state police.

Identifies Brother
Officers R. R. Karickhoff and Kelley went with the two men to the scene and when the automobile headlights illuminated the body, Ray Newhouse cried out:

"I believe that's my brother." Authorities said Borrer told them he left Newhouse at 6 p. m. at the Rex beer parlor in Piedmont, and that both had several drinks. Borrer said Newhouse declined to return to Keyser with him, explaining he planned to "get into a card game" in Piedmont.

Evidence at the scene indicated that the body had been dragged into the ditch, and a tire mark at the edge of the road showed that a car had been turned around at that point. Newhouse's shoes were scuffed at the heels, apparently from being dragged over a hard-surfaced road or sidewalk.

Newhouse was unmarried and lived with his mother, Mrs. Edward Newhouse. He is also survived by two other brothers, John and William at home, and two sisters, Mrs. E. McGreevy, at home, and another in Ohio.

Borrer is married and the father of two children. He is held in the county jail for further questioning.

CCC Camp Will Present Minstrel in Church
